Semester tests requires preparation as junior Marjorie Paschal arranges her papers.

It's People . . .

Usually it's not a building that makes a school good, it's the people with their beliefs, traditions, and qualities. The teachers have the belief in educating students to the best of their abilities.

The traditions have set trends for years to come. These traditions uphold academics and spirit and keep them in perspective.

Qualities have been evident in education and perseverance to do a good job.

A good school is one that has all these beliefs, traditions, and qualities. But, what makes this school better than all the rest, is that it's ours.

Taking a break from rehearsals for "Fiddler" is thirsty senior Tony Santos.

It's Experiences . . .

Many events make one year different from another. This year it was the entrance of computers. Computers took over the report card industry. Along with these computers came video games and cable TV.

The economy also had a stabilizing effect on the happenings around school. With high inflation, people found it harder to manage their money. Reaganomics took its toll as it failed in the eyes of a lot of students.

With all these bad times, one could still find joy at the movie theatre. E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial became a million dollar alien who will never be forgotten.

Showing her spirit, Terri Novak gets ready to "punk" the L.D. Bell Raiders.

As studying becomes more frequent in the cafeteria, Peter Cartsunis assists fellow classmate Albert Charonza with some problem homework from English.

Varsity cheerleaders Letitia Chapman, Shelia Smith, Seanna Saunders, Sally Summers, and Gina Nelson find temporary cover at a rainy Homecoming.

Proud seniors show affection toward the juniors to win the spirit stick.

It's Devotion . . .

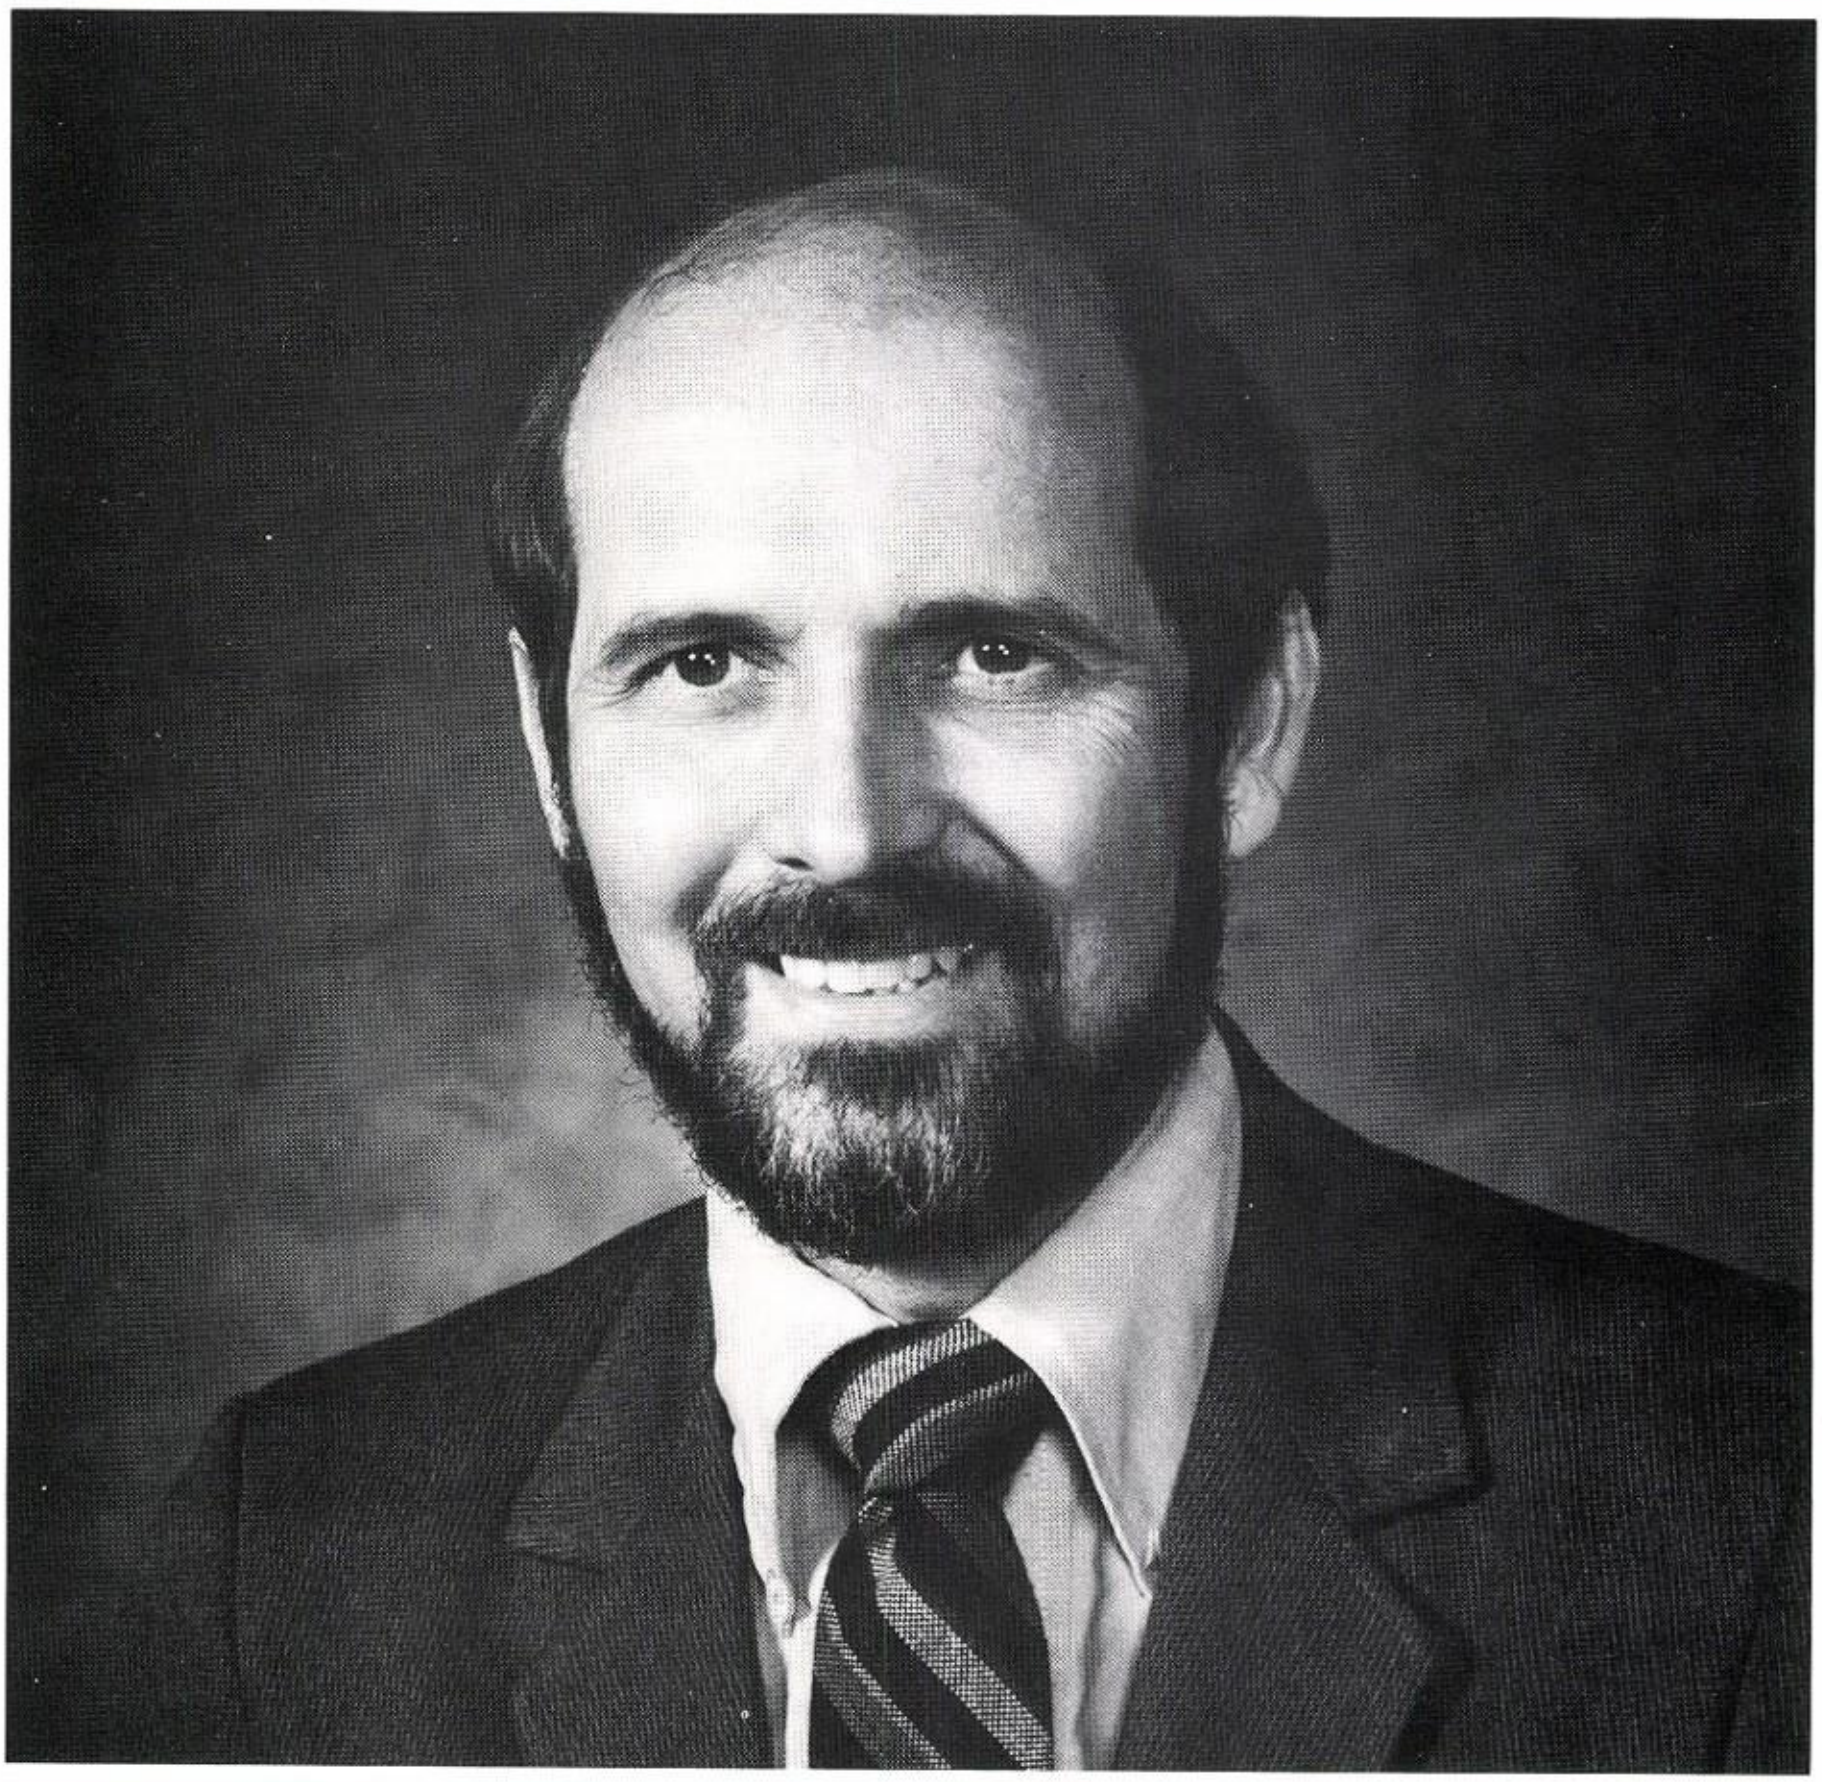
Now you see him, now you don't. Magic? Could be . . . he is a magician. But he also has his hand in many of the activities unique to Big Sam.

As assistant director of the band, sponsor of the American Field Service and organizer of the Miss Texan Pageant, Mr. Jeremy Walker isan inspiration to all who know him. Whether directing the orchestra for a school musical, teaching music history to English students, or sponsoring a chili supper, Mr. Walker is always willing to give his own time.

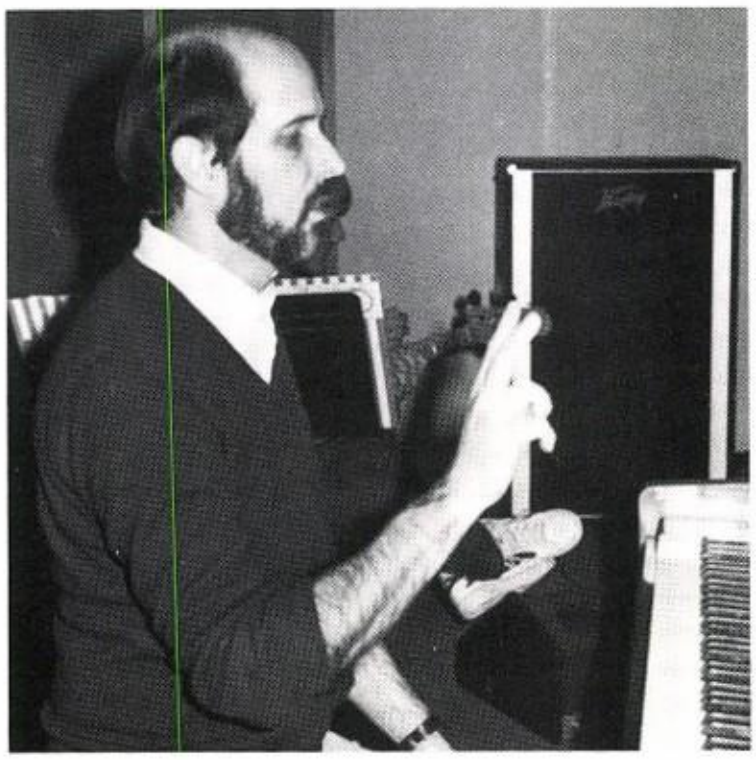
He is always smiling and happy which makes him one of everybody's favorite people. His enthusiasm is contagious, so when we learn he is involved, we want to participate.

For 14 years, he has been an important part of our faculty and school.

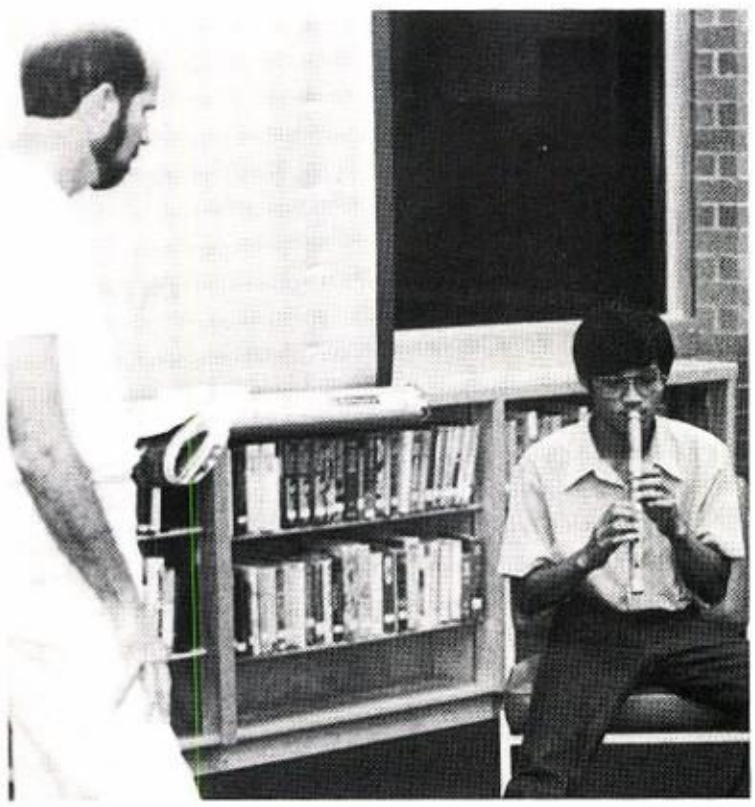
Because of this and his fun personality, we dedicate this 1983 Cherokee to Mr. Jeremy Walker.



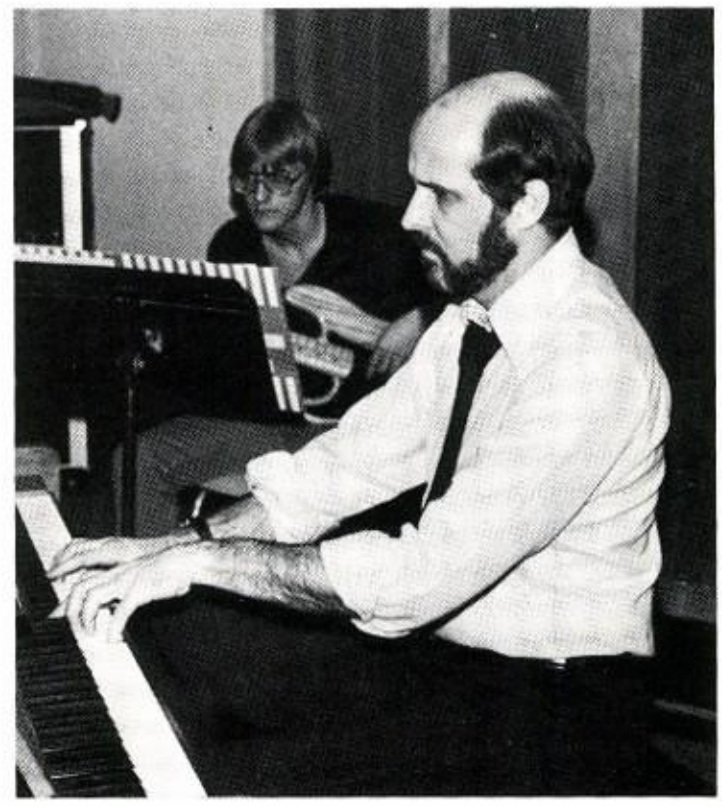
Working on one of the many great plays, Mr. Jeremy Walker keeps time on his piano.



As Miss Texan Pageant chairman, Mr. Jeremy Walker speaks to girls about the event.



AFS sponsor Mr. Jeremy Walker listens to some Thailand music from Samai Tongmak.



Mr. Jeremy Walker is doing what he loves to do, tickling the ivory keys of the piano.

It's Awesome . . .

"This school year has been totally awesome." Junior Melissa Cooper sums up the feeling with these few words. People hardly had a chance to find their way to their classes before preparations for an early Homecoming began. On their way to school, students found it hard to park. One could not pass security guards and the new gates without paying the required $15 for a parking sticker.

Seniors surpassed all odds by making over $19,500 total gross selling magazines, beating last year's total by $4000. They slipped during Homecoming by winning only two of the three events, then picked themselves up to clear out class competition. These tasks were hard to accomplish with the lowest enrollment ever, only a little more than 1450 students.

It was a more organized year with events being run smoothly. The main intent was to get more people involved.

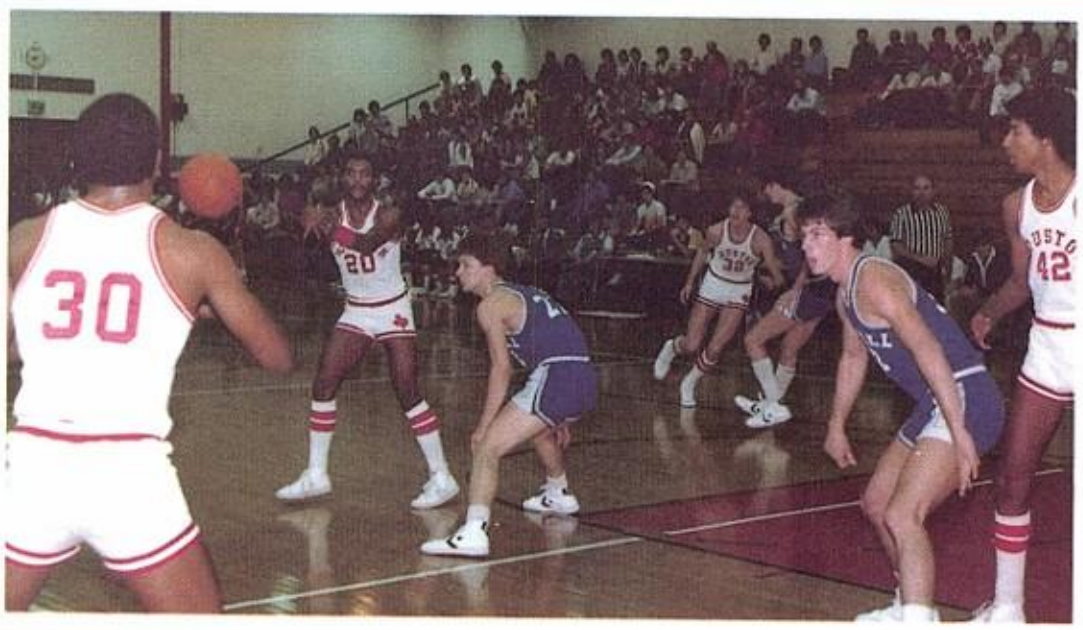
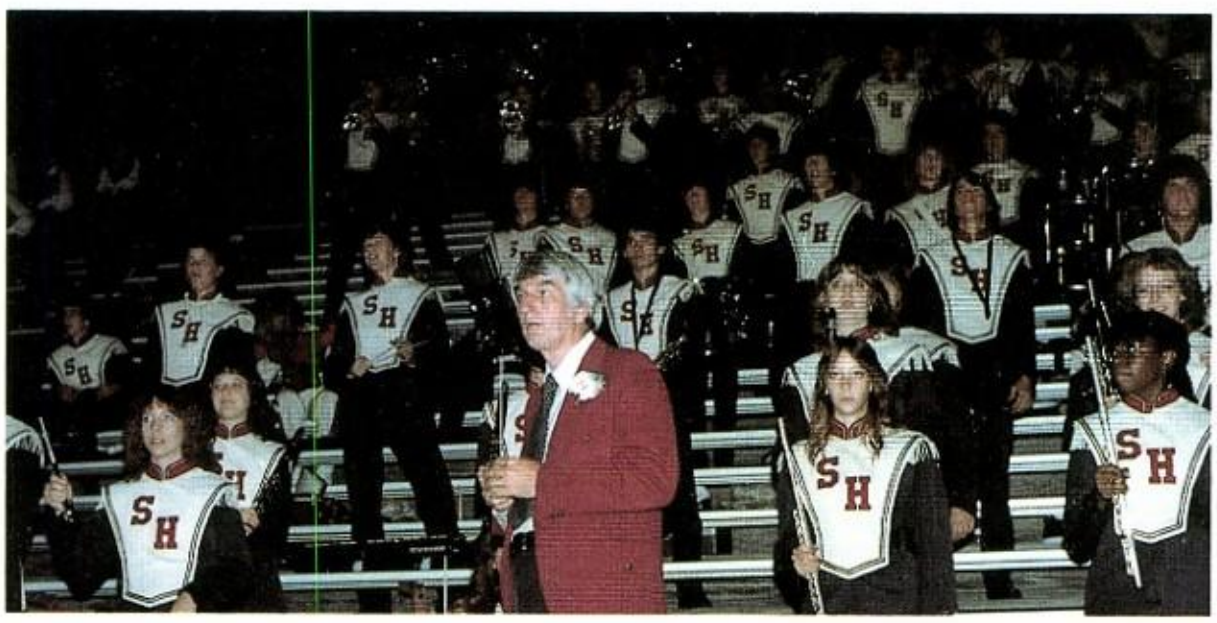
Junior Jonathon Henderson sneaks a pass by an L.D. Bell Blue Raider opponent to senior Ken Pennie.



. . . It's Ours

Students never get too old for Santa as sophomores tell him what they want.



Football and mums merge together for more Homecoming memories.

Awaiting the football team's next move, Mr. Bob Rober and band members observe with anticipation.

Turmoil Arises On First Day

It was our twentieth first day of school. Sophomores were asking for directions to rooms. Pointing with out-stretched arms, teachers and upperclassmen proved helpful and were rewarded with a kind "thank you." Bewildered faces and lost expressions acted as reminders of their initial day.

Seniors were too excited about their last day to even think about the first day of school. Talks of pictures, rings, and gowns were already filling their conversation time. Juniors had only to worry about raising their grade point average from last year, deciding which college they would attend and possibly choosing a career.

But sophomores had to prepare themselves for a new way of life of which Aug. 30 gave them only a taste. Learning their way through the halls was only the beginning of the three year experience awaiting them.

Sam Says Howdy

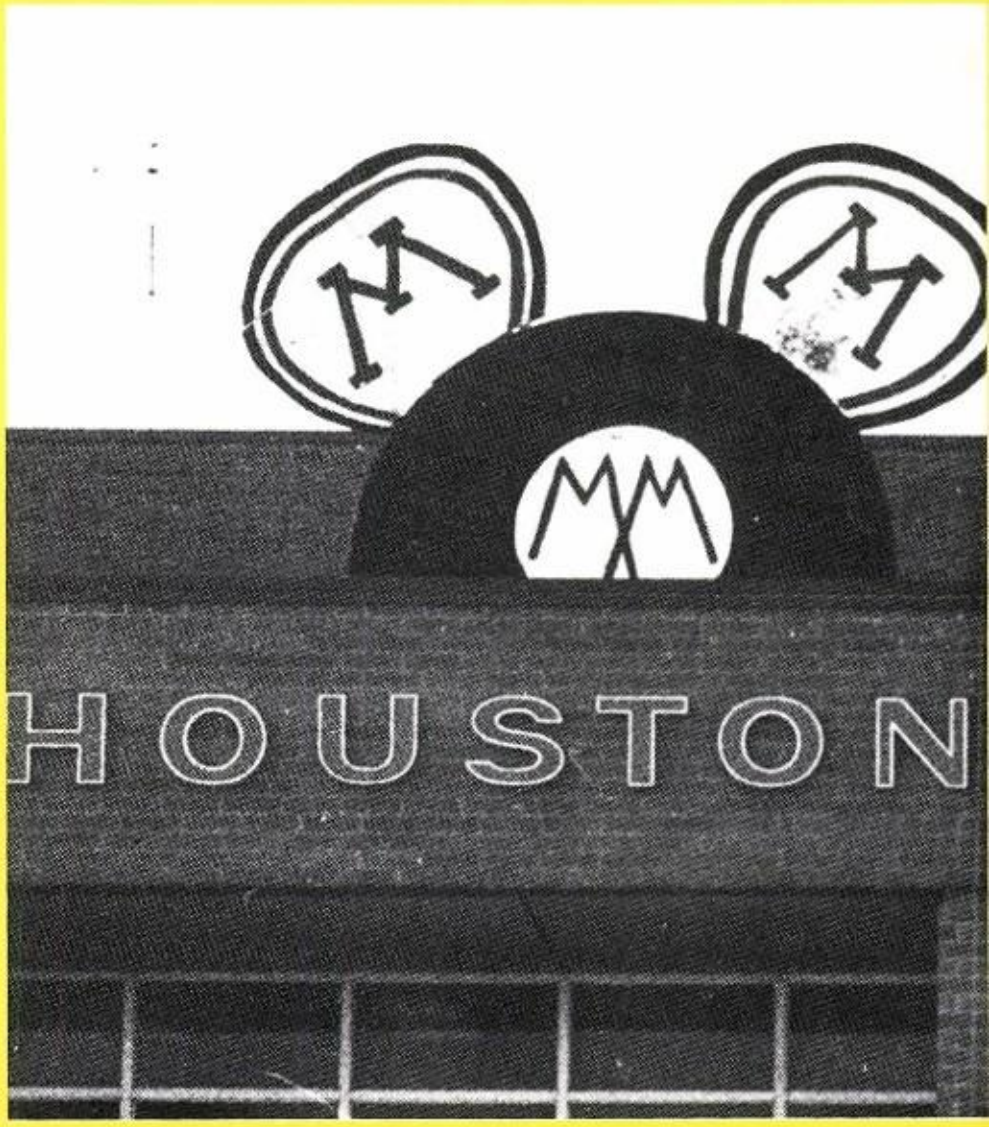
M-I-C-K-E-Y M-O-U-S-E . . . Sophomores! This cry, along with the ever so popular Fight Song, echoed through the halls on Sept. 7. Student Congress Sheriffs passed out Howdy Day supplies to classes after being tipped off when Vice-Principal G. A. Glenn told seniors to "sell those magazines."

At the pep rally on the Friday after, senior Eddy Perry alias Mr. Rogers, guided sophomores to true Texanhood. Sophomores discovered what being a true Texan was really like.

"Howdy Day was great. I had been dreading it and thought it would be bad, but it wasn't."

– Beverly Click

Upperclassmen demand to hear the fight song from Theresa Carder, Richard Spiva, and Kim Armstrong on Howdy Day.



One of the traditions of Howdy Day at Sam is putting up the Mickey Mouse ears.

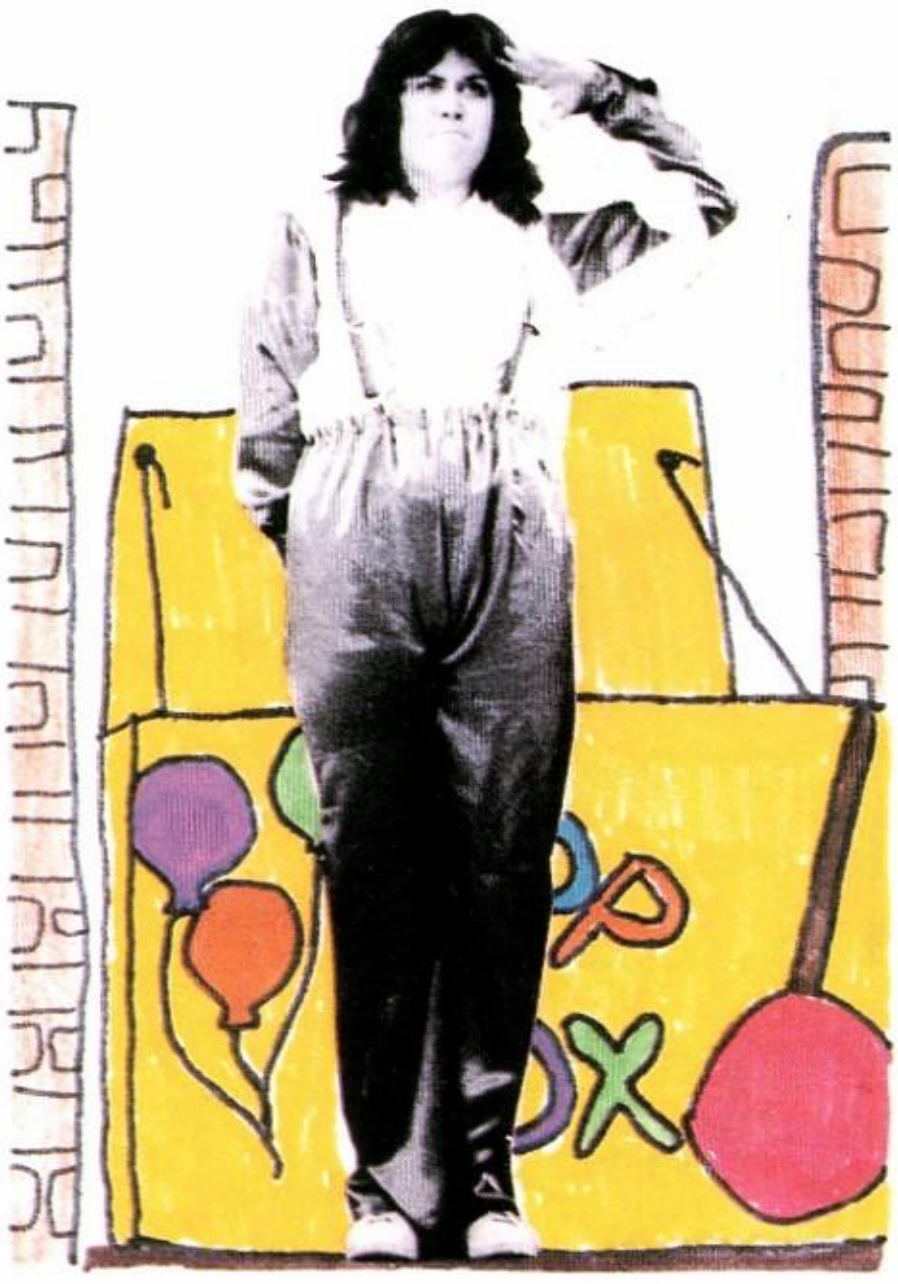
AESOP'S!

The Drama Department's "#1-derful Season" began before the first bells rang with auditions for Aesop's Falables. The cast was later posted, and rehearsals began as sophs were still trying to find their first period class, seven hours too late.

This children's show gave its senior and junior cast valuable and needed experience. It also started creating the close relationships needed for a winning season.

A new stage craft class built and painted the set for this show where the cast took on some characteristics of animals to teach moral lessons. Although crowds were not as expected, the show was a great start for a promising season.



Introducing herself to the audience, Amelia Eagle (Terri Novak) prides herself on her expert flying ability.

"Howd-a-do, Mr. Sun," says the grasshopper (Sharla Baulch) to Brad Herring during Aesop's rehearsals.

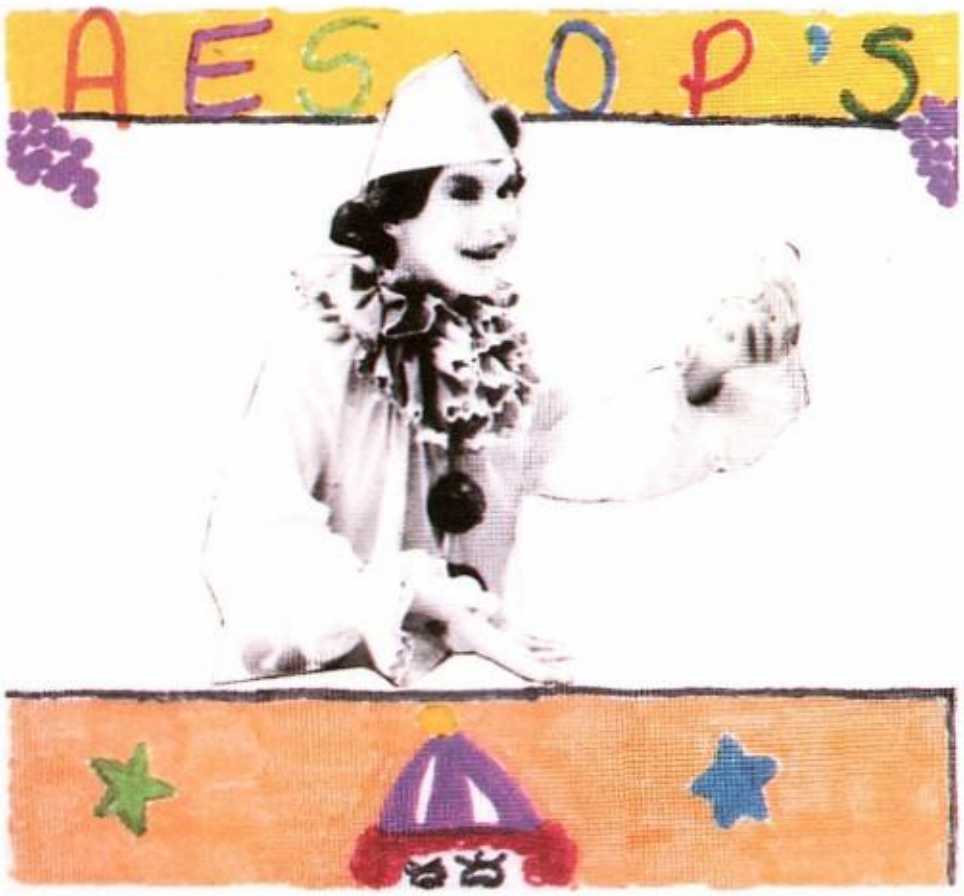
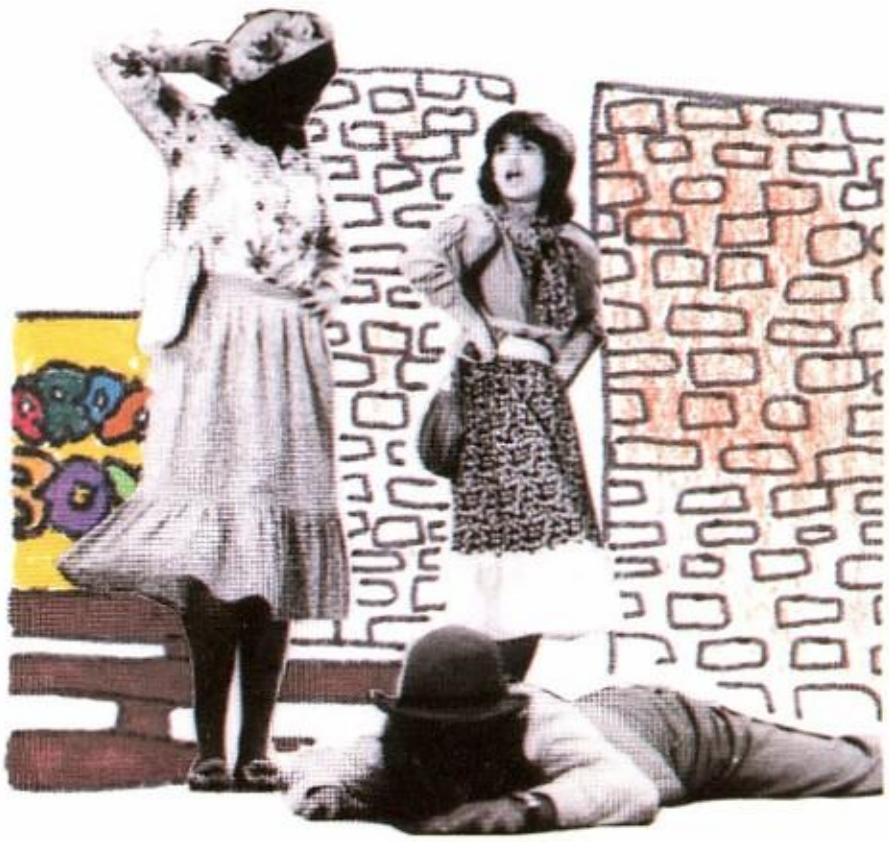
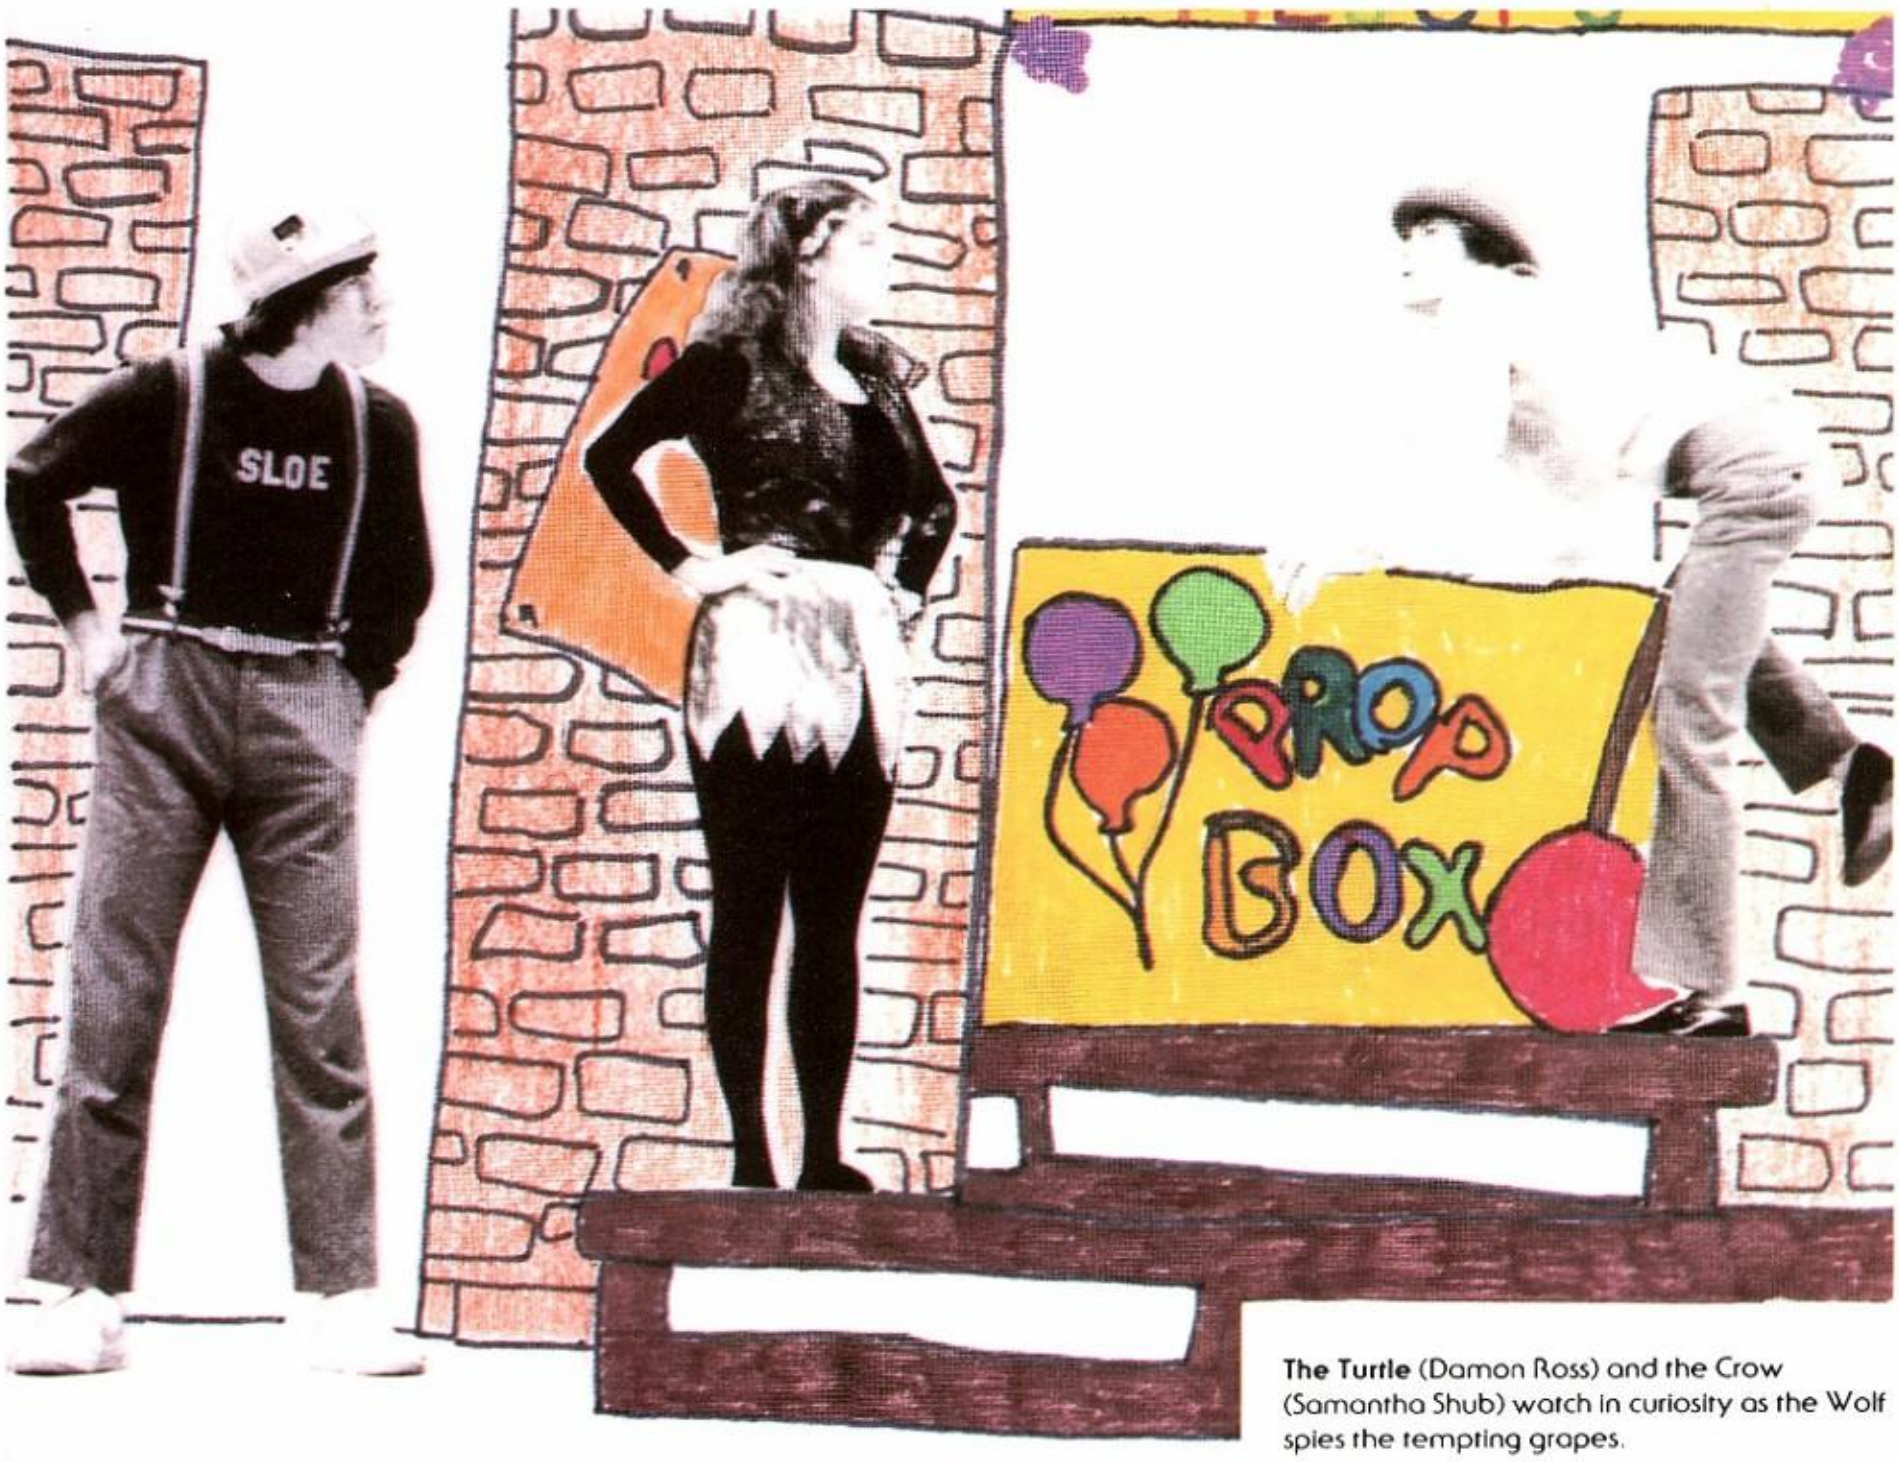
Popping up, the Jack-in-the-Box (Blake Walker) catches the audience by surprise.

The voluptuous sheep sisters (Alisa Bains and Kim Crow) fight off their attacker, the Wolf (Jon Syrus).







The Turtle (Damon Ross) and the Crow (Samantha Shub) watch in curiosity as the Wolf spies the tempting grapes.

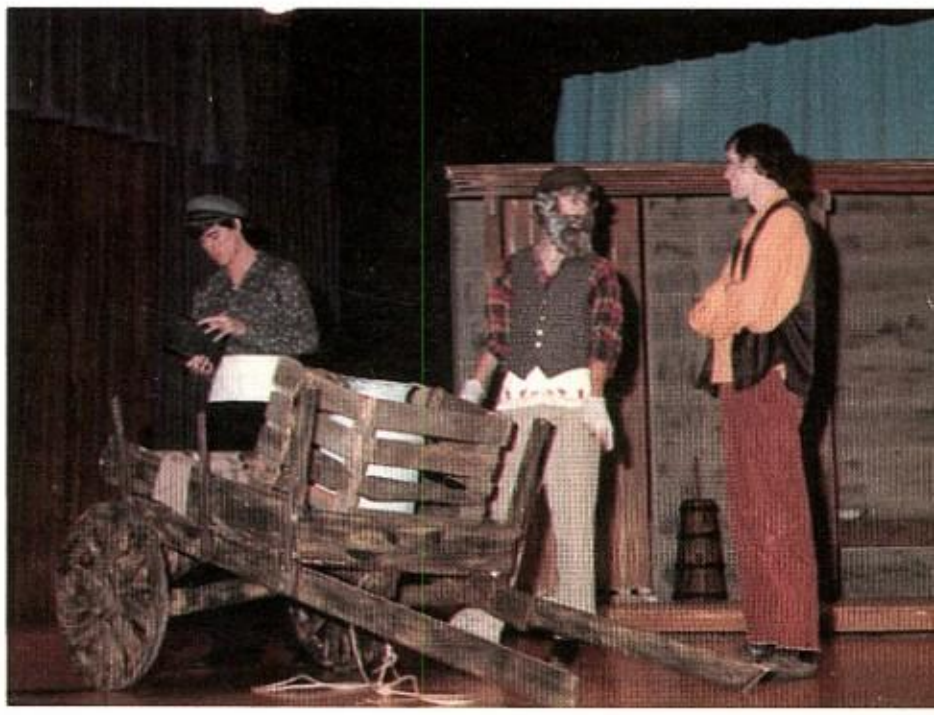
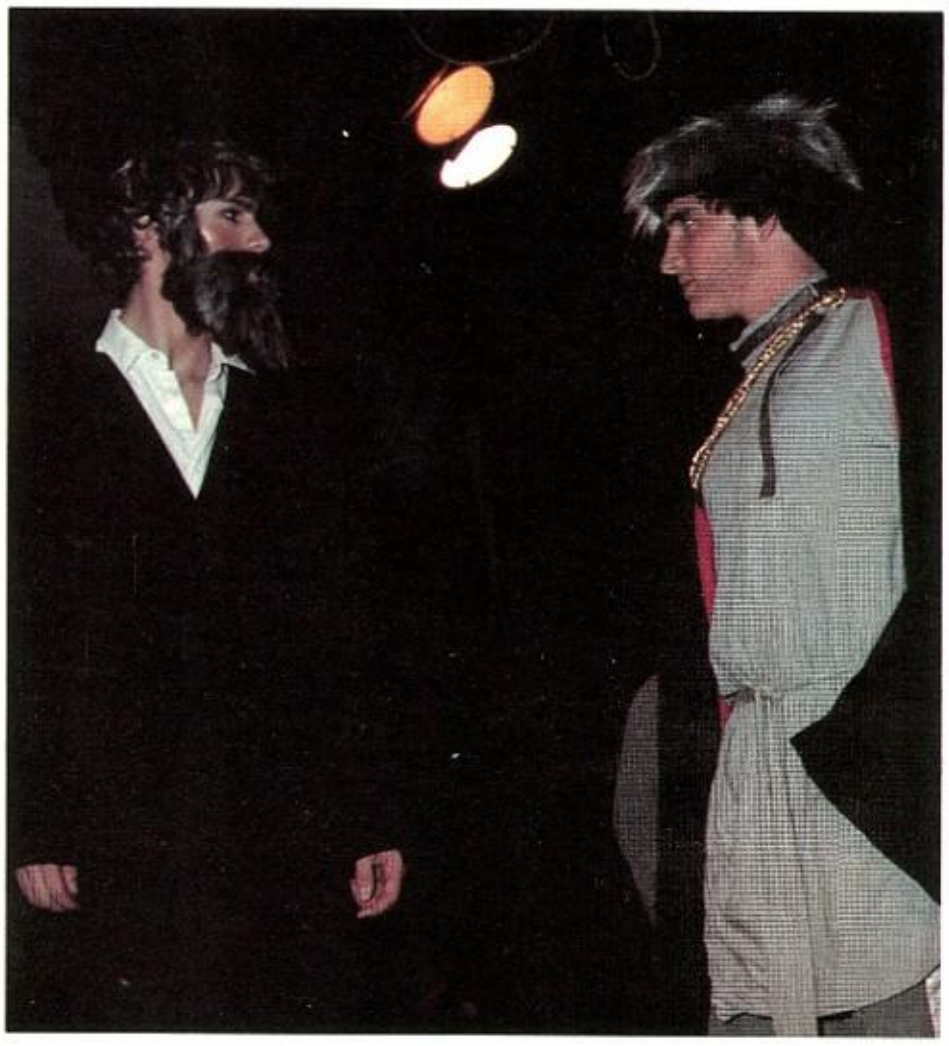
'Fiddler' Proves Successful

Like the Jewish community of Anatevka, which was bound together by their traditions, the cast of "Fiddler On the Roof" became a family through its dedication for the show and to each other. Their hard work was rewarded with large crowds during its Dec. 2-4 run.

The musical featured the most elaborate sets in the school's history. A number of local children, including kids of faculty, were cast. Constructing the set were Mr. Bob Connor, history teacher, and Mr. Rodney Dalton, "senior" father.



Perchik (Richard Spivo) warns Mendel (Damon Ross) and Tevye of upcoming violence in their Russian village of Anatevka.

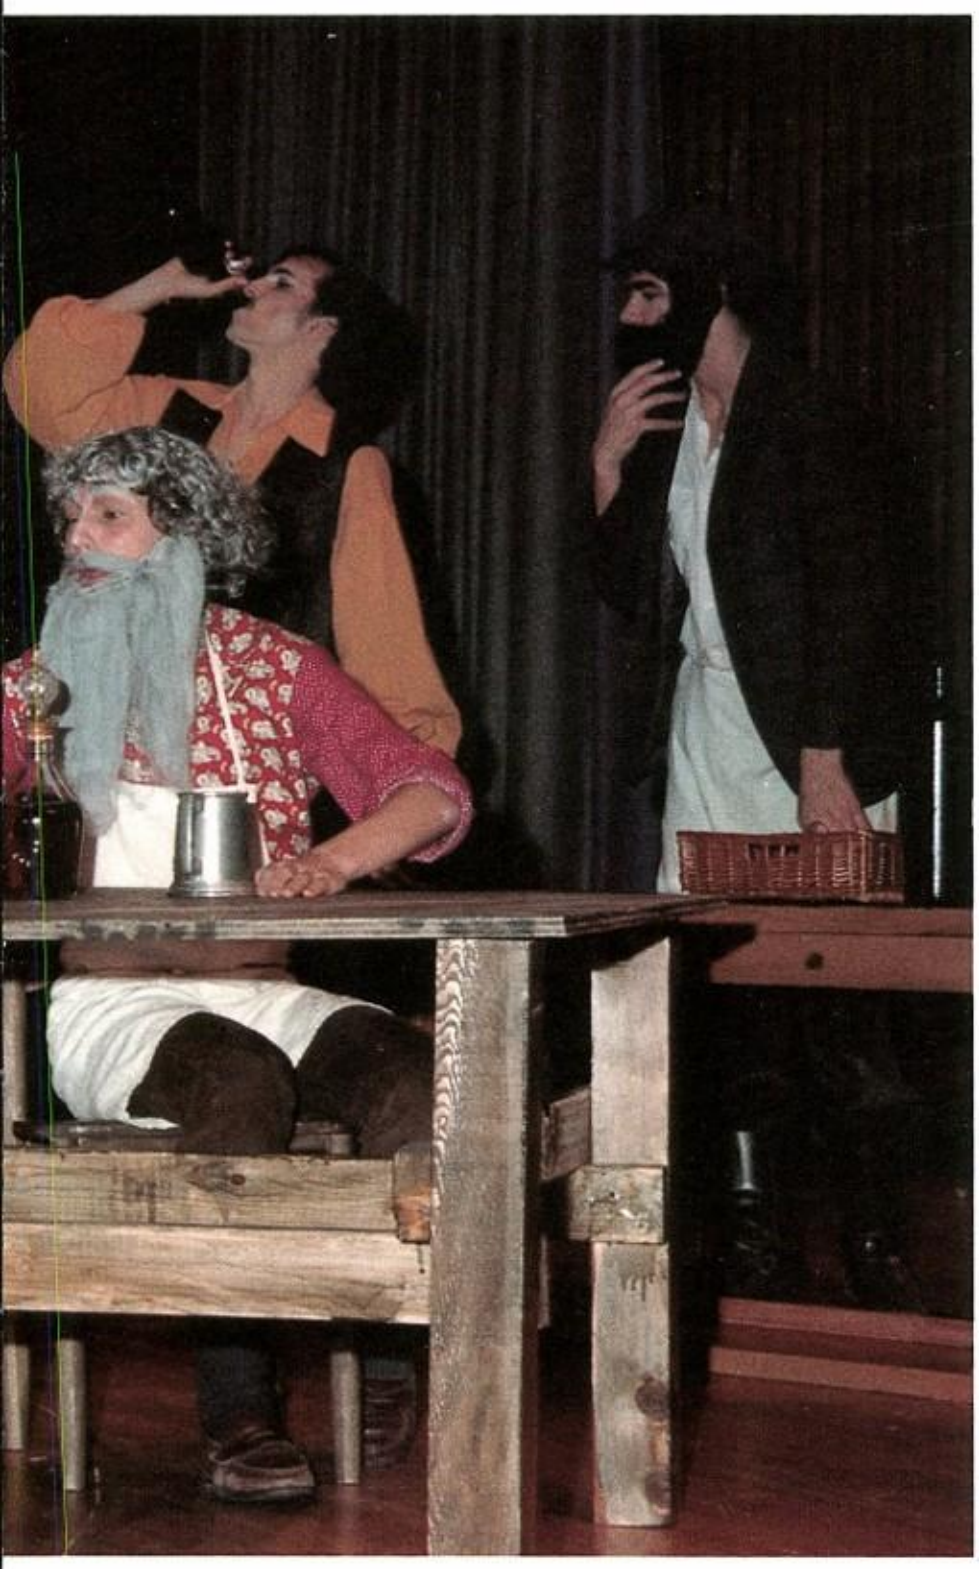


Tevye (Jon Syrus) is advised by the Constable (Randy Rhodes), of the Russian strength after an "unofficial demonstration" in their village.

Confusion arises when Lazar (Blake Walker) asks Tevye for his daughrer Tzeitel's hand in marriage, and Tevye thinks he's asking for his milk cow.

Pondering over getting married Hodel (Kim Crow), Bielke (Sharla Baulch), Tzeitel (Jennifer David), and Shprintze (Angie Ivie) sing "Matchmaker."

In a celebration for Lazar's match with Tzeitel, Russian soldier (Dino Fort,) Lazar, and Fyedka (Brad Herring) do the traditional dance to the song "To Life."



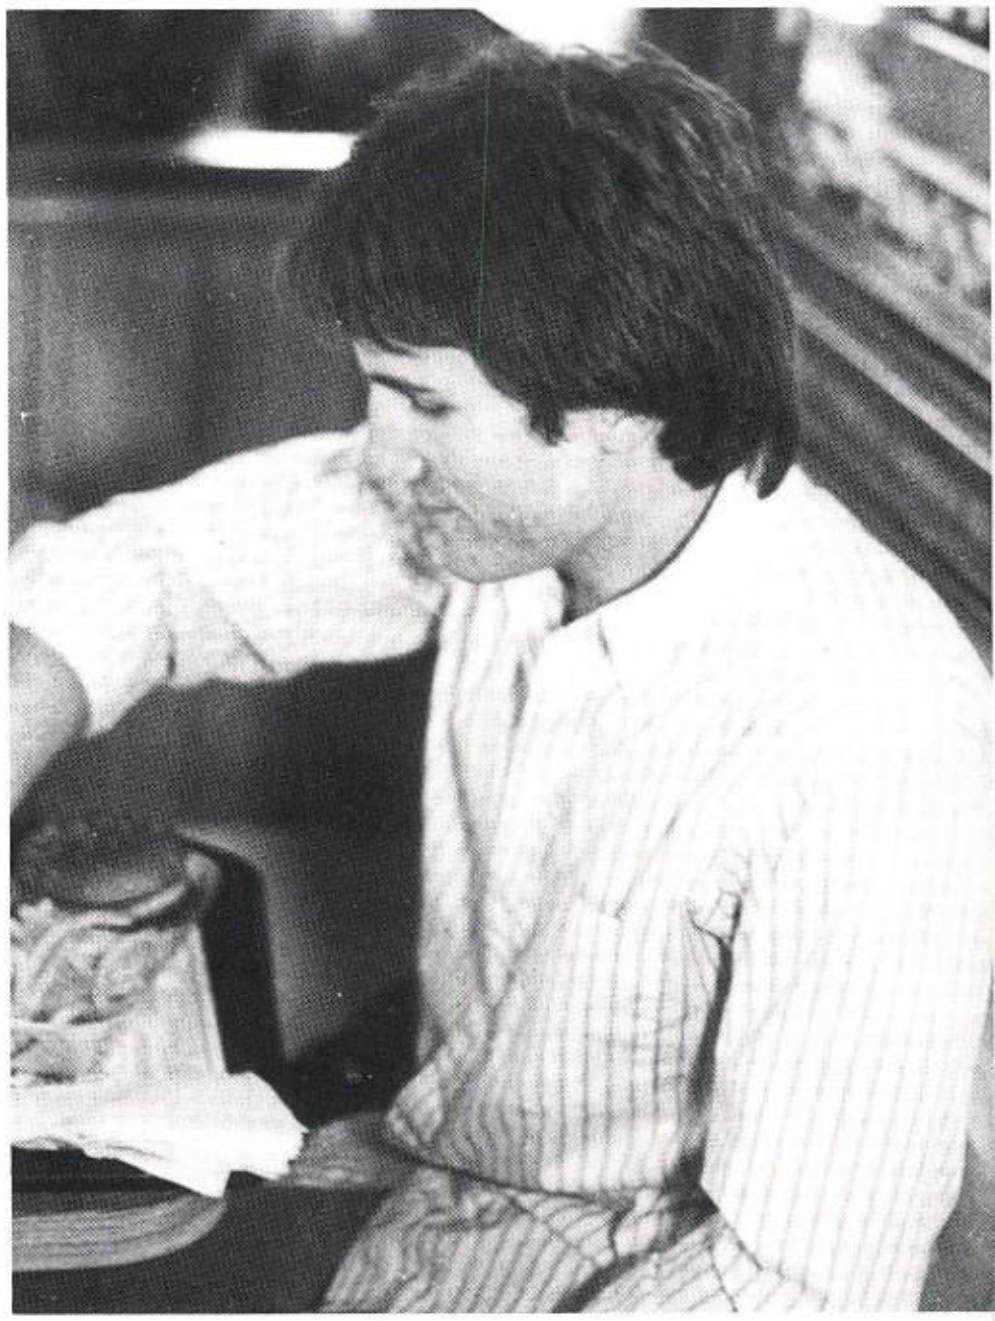
The ghost Fruma-Sarah (Samantha Shub) warns Tevye not to let Tzeitel marry Lazar.

Texans Celebrate The Weekends

Party fever spread rapidly toward the end of each week. The mentally draining activities of school were replaced on weekends by physically draining ones.

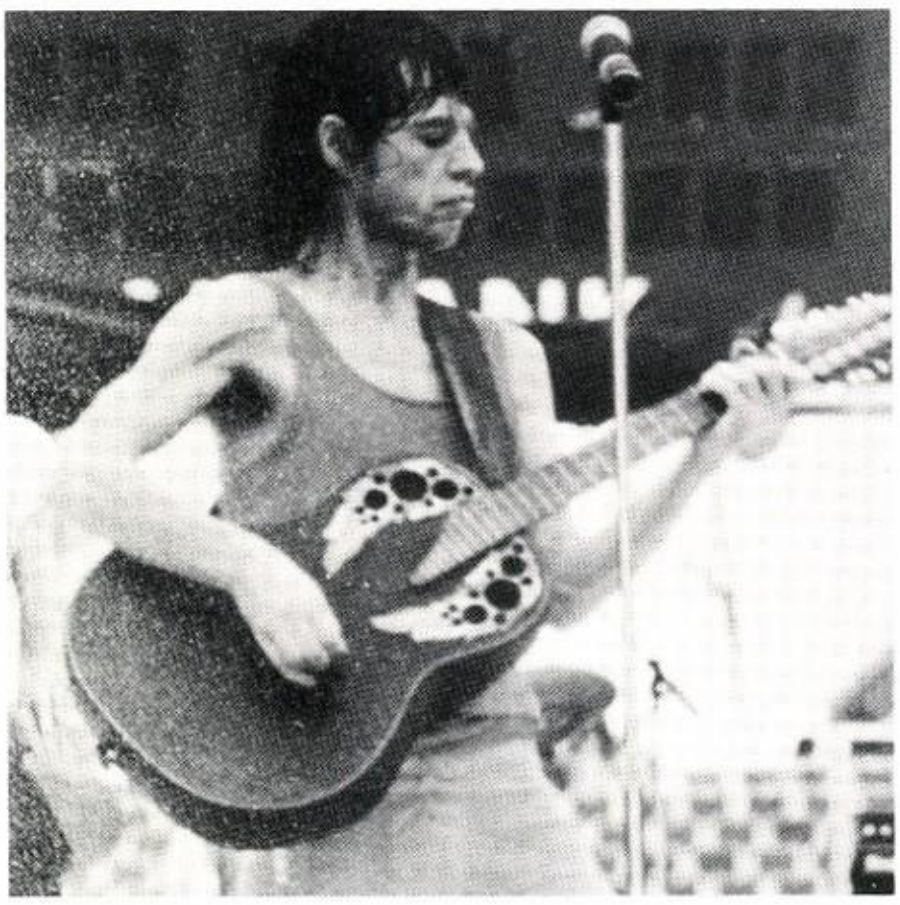
The pool hall and cruising Cooper continued to be popular, but not only on the weekends. Cooper provided a good time while cruising for guys and gals, and the video craze was still seen at the pool hall and Forum Fair.

Sammy Hagar, The Who, Alabama, and many others sang students under their chairs, if they were not already there. T-shirts were bought as a status symbol for those fortunate enough to attend.

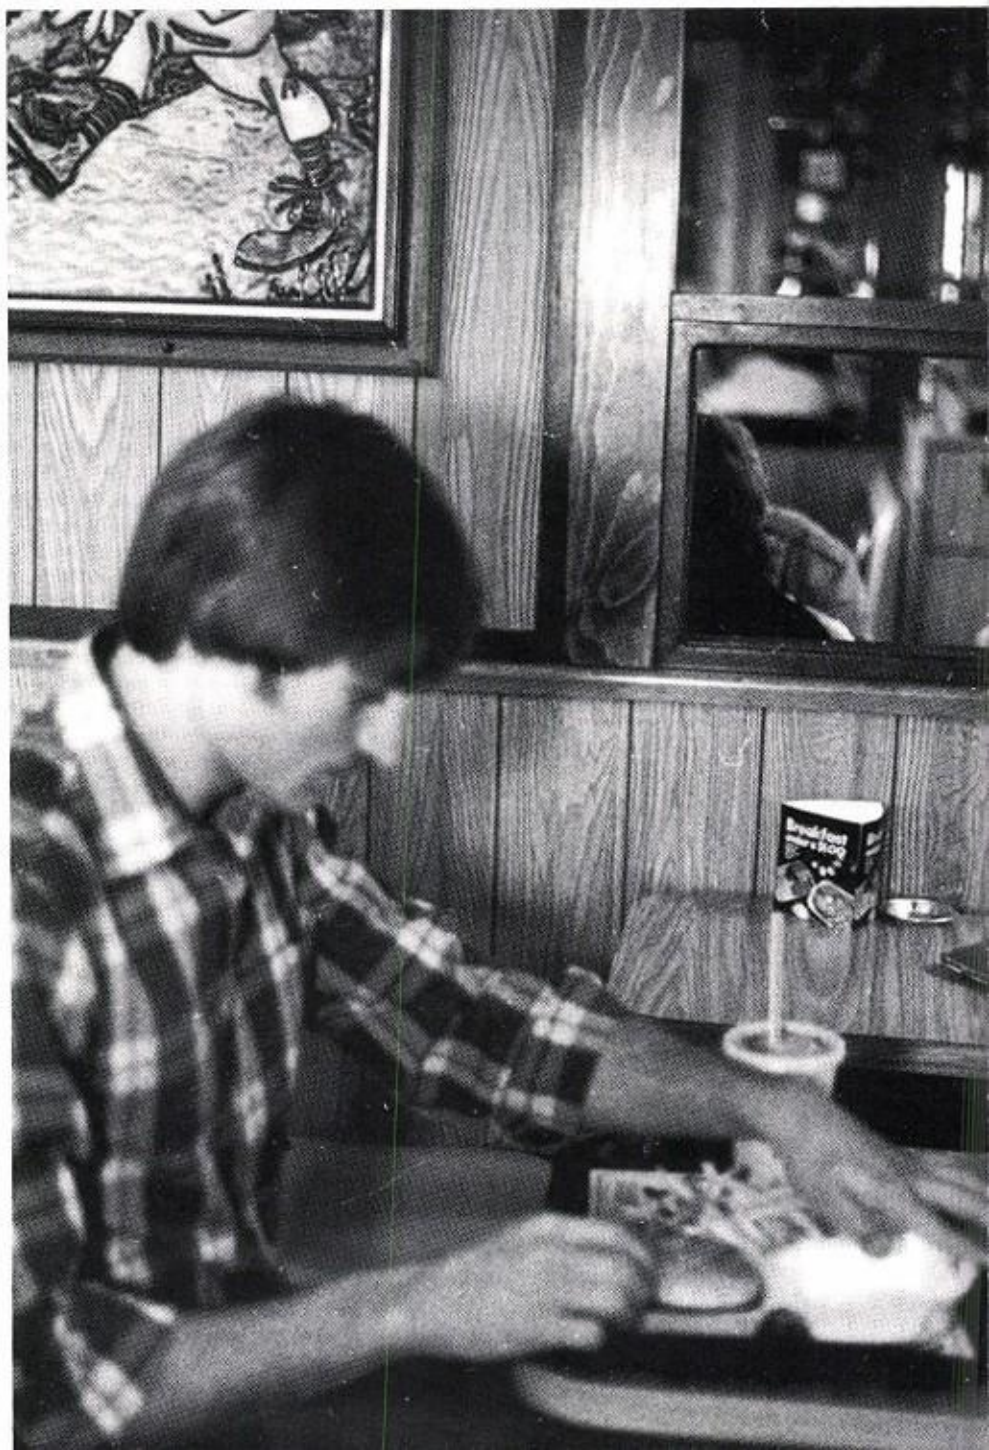


Rock music and faithful fans keep Mick Jagger's concerts full of excitement and energy.

Quarter Pounder, Fries, and Soft Drink is the choice lunch for senior David Fickett as well as other students.



The famous "Golden Arches" is favorite and cheapest lunch stop for senior Mike Jenkins.



Juniors Randy Rhodes and Randy Wooten follow the fad playing video games at the Forum.

Many students prefer the sounds of Mick Jagger at one of his many sell-out concerts.

Friday Rallies Liven Up Spirit

Excitement began every Friday morning as the student body and faculty packed the gymnasium. Instantly cheers, victory cries, music and laughter echoed throughout the halls. Heading the yells, varsity and JV cheerleaders stirred up spirit for the football game. Bellguards, cheerleaders, and the mascot combined their talents to produce a different skit for each pep rally. Some of the comedy themes included Texman, Punker, and the Time Machine.

Music and dance were composed by the band and Tex-Annes.

Seniors dominated the spirit stick, winning five, followed by three won by the juniors and the sophs with two.

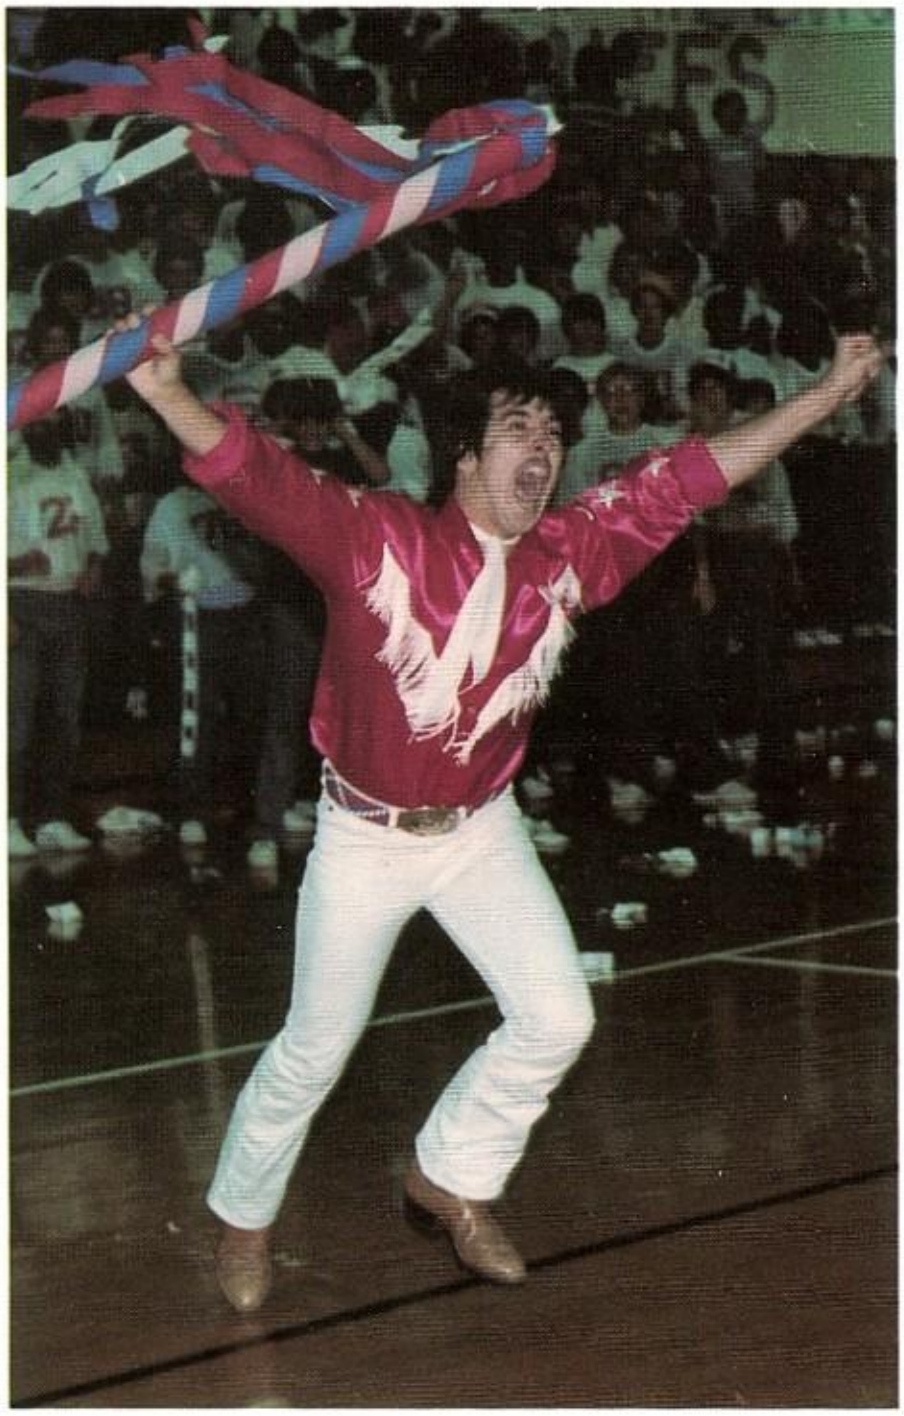
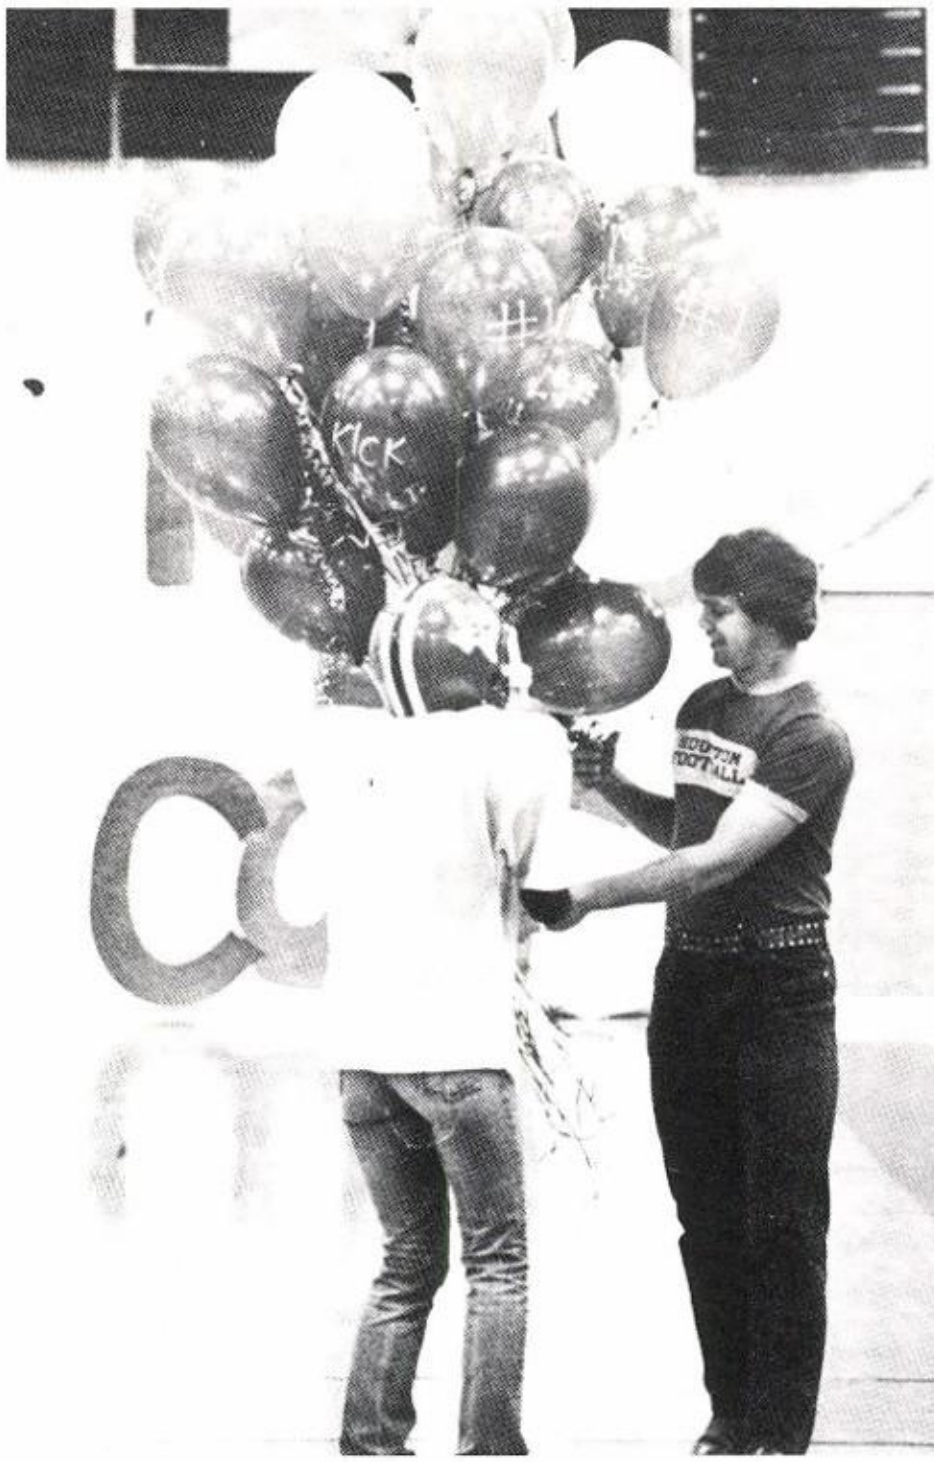
Enthusiastic bellguard Darren Bates awards the spirit-stick to the seniors.



"Teammate" Angie Ivie presents Morris Kiker a balloon bouquet for luck.



The JV football team enjoys the skit performed by the varsity cheerleaders before the victory over the Burleson Elks.

The true character of the Senior Class comes out in the pep rallies when Texans show Sam spirit.

Big Sam spirit was ever present, which continued the tradition. Seniors Mark Jones and Pam Day were envisioned as the Student Body's idea of the most spirited couple and were given the title of Mr. and Miss School Spirit.

Mark and Pam led seniors in winning five spirit sticks at football pep rallies. Mark served as a bellguard and was chosen all-district second baseman for baseball his junior year.

Pam cheered the Texan team to victory for three years, and served as Student Congress treasurer. She was also a Homecoming Queen finalist.

It was once again a Homecoming threatened by rain, but the sky seemed to clear as Pam Kerley's name was announced as Homecoming Queen. The expected rain held off though, until after the crowning ceremony.

Even though the early Homecoming hastened preparations for the game against Haltom, the spirit still prevailed on campus.

Pat Henz, Student Congress Third House President, happily gave the traditional kiss to Pam, who was escorted by Mario Campos. Also assisting in the ceremony were Jonathan Walker and Jenny Fowler.

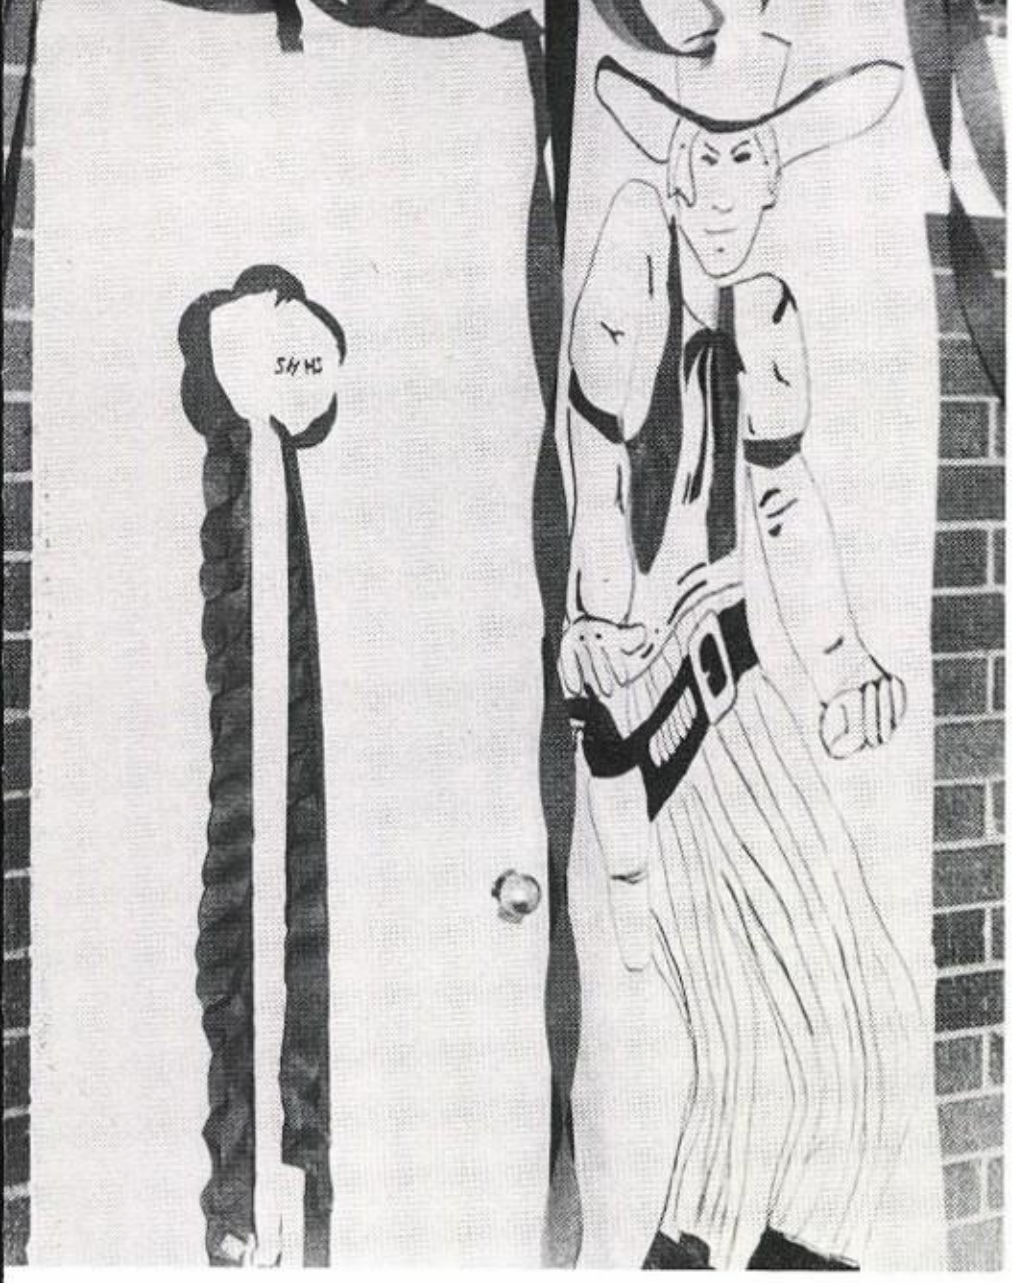
Top Classes Strut Spirit

Fierce competition between classes peaked at the Homecoming pep rally, as seniors saw their class come away with the coveted spirit stick. Seniors also captured the spirit link competition, collecting almost $300. This figure was greater than the junior and sophomore collection combined.

Halls saw renovations made the week of Homecoming. Classes decorated their assigned halls with colorful murals, decorations, and streamers. Juniors, with the theme "Texan Arcade," received first place honors.

Mr. Jay Cannon's homeroom took first place in door decorations, and Ms. Judy Squires' door won second.



The first annual door decoration contest added a colorful touch to Homecoming '82.

"Texan Arcade" was the winning theme of the junior hall in the hall decoration activities.

1982 Homecoming nominees Christy Mitchell, escorted by Dennis Livingston, and Lisa Locke, escorted by Doug Meacham, prepare to be presented to the Student Body.

Special, but Early . . .

Homecoming '82

"It's very over glamorized. Homecoming's more fun if taken as another night out, either with friends or a date."

– Sharla Baulch, senior

"I thought the hall decorations were a lot of fun, especially since the juniors won!"

– Penny Beard, junior

"Homecoming '82 was a night to remember as a sophomore. I was really looking forward to Homecoming night since the beginning of school. The night it arrived, it was everything I expected and even more. Homecoming night is something you can look back at 10 years from now."

– Kim Guess, sophomore

Fads and Fashions

New fads and fashions made the '83 look original. From western to punk, students enjoyed the freedom to dress as they pleased. The 80's fashion era said "Do Your Own Thing."

The cowpokes duded out in Wrangler jeans and Stetson hats, as well as bandanas which quickly became popular. Even though western wear has become less of a fad, its comfort and practicality still make it a winner with true Texans and cowpokes.

Two trends, one old — one new, were popular scenes in the 80's. Even though the casual dressers had been around for some time with their sweatshirts and blue jeans, the new preppy look soon took over with button-downs worn over a sport shirt, penny loafers and Polos.

Besides the other new looks of the 80's, there were two totally new looks. Those who got into new wave dressed up with striped or polka dotted mini-skirts and leg warmers topped off with a headband.

Then the punkers stepped in and punked out with their mighty whips and chains.

In all styles of clothing seen, comfort was the main point stressed, so students took the freedom to do their own thing.

State Eludes One-Act Play

One-act '83 concluded a "#1-derful season" as it advanced to the final eight in state competition.

For the third time in Sam's history, the cast said, "Aloha Austin," but failed to place. The ensemble grew stronger as it moved on to state.

Director Mr. Don Blankenship considered "The Crucible" the most rewarding one-act with which he had ever been involved. The show accumulated more individual awards at the five levels than any other Sam competitor in the past.

Deaf Education: Signs of Time

Ms. Karen Jackson felt she had more of a problem getting her classes' attention than most teachers. She taught deaf education. Sometimes she tapped on desks, stomped her foot,even flickered the lights just to get everyone to look at her.

There were five interpreters who assisted Ms. Jackson. The interpreters went with the students to their classes. They worked all day and stayed at school all year.

Ms. Jackson taught two English classes for the deaf, one study hall class for the deaf, and one sign language class for the hearing. She tried to parallel her English classes to the regular classes as closely as possible. For example the students read two novels and did a junior theme.

Ms. Karen Jackson, Blanca Ruiz, and Randy Windle demonstrate the ways of using sign language.

Fine Arts Week . . . Old Tradition Comes Alive

Fine arts teachers put together a week of free concerts and shows for the Student Body. Called the Fine Arts Festival, the week was a resurrection of an old tradition, which died a number of years ago.

To start off the events, drama gave its regional winning one-act performance of "The Crucible."

First Class represented the Choir Department during lunch periods, and band held a special concert in honor of the week.

The Art Department presented displays in the library and foyer, while publications displayed past and present newspapers, annuals, and layout pages in an F Hall showcase.

Texan Day:

A day of festivities that includes a hoedown, carnival, and lots of fun

And it brought in April with a bang! Texan Day, which caught many by surprise, had quickly arrived, and it saw the good, as well as the bad, hauled off to the senior jail.

Such days for bandannas, boots, and hats preempted the annual occasion and rekindled that true-Texan fire in Sam students. These events were sponsored by Student Congress, who did another fine job in organizing the week's festivities.

Senior Student Congress members and Senior Class Officers were named honorary sheriffs. Lucky ones tried their hands at winning a car stereo, dinners, and a stuffed animal.

Festivities climaxed with the carnival on Thursday night. Since school was out on the following day, Texan fires burned late into the night, which included a barnyard dance.

Ann, who displayed her talent in a dance to the song "America," was crowned after Stacy Griffin and Kelli Wood were named first and second runner-ups, respectively in the competition.

With the theme "Masquerade," the pageant included a variety of talents. Among these the guest talent at the pageant, Tara Hutchison, sang two songs, one with Master of Ceremonies, Craig Cross.

When the winning streaks were making themselves scarce to the athletes, a group of 17 girls and three guys came to the rescue.

The group, of course, consisted of JV and varsity cheerleaders, bellguards, and the LTT. They helped the football players find extra spirit by giving them an exhilarating pep rally each Friday morning of the season and by cheering at the game.

"We kept candy and cookies in sacks above their lockers to let them know we were still behind them 100%," related bellguard Shelly Mitchell about methods of encouragement. They also decorated the men's athletic lockers each morning before the pep rally.

Being a part of this spirited squad required determination, according to varsity cheerleader Pam Day who claimed, "It takes a lot of time and responsibility that people don't realize." The 10 varsity cheerleaders were each assigned the planning and production of one pep rally. The four bellguards were given charge of the last "Sports" pep rally.

Hours spent in practice and concentration were made visible through the spirit stick won four out of a possible five times, along with six top ribbons awarded at the SMU summer camp.

Honors

At the Cherokee Awards Assembly on May 4, Craig Cross and Kristen Hackenberg bestowed Assistant Band Director Jeremy Walker with the honor of the Annual Dedication.

Fun, Food, Excitement Top Off Senior Day

Hackenberg or Cross? Contemporary or traditional? This was the basis of the Awards Assembly which was an election woven into a news program, hosted by seniors LaDonna "Iola" Bush and Ramzi "Chip" Gillespie.

Senior Craig Cross portrayed the Democrat whose political policy was "keep women barefoot and pregnant." His rival was played by senior Kristen Hackenberg, who emphasized her belief that women are superior to men.

"Iola" and "Chip" kept a running tally of the votes. Between scenes, awards were given.

Throughout the show, Craig took the lead, but in the last scene, Kristen had earned enough votes to tie her opponent. Then in the finale, Assistant Band Director Mr. Jeremy Walker was discovered to be the only elector who hadn't voted. At the same time, Mr. Walker was announced as the Cherokee Dedication honoree, and it was learned that his portrayal of an elector was only a cover for the honor.

Bud Weiser (Billy McElroy) protects Craig from his barefoot and pregnant wife's (Angela Mentlik) view.

Secret Service man Fettucini Alfredo (Kent Rice) spent his time during the assembly guarding Senator Craig Cross and threatening "Chip" Gillespie.

Samai Transforms Into Thai-Texan

A student who liked homework? Yes, such a person walked these very halls! Actually, he wasn't just a person, but the foreign exchange student, Samai Tongmak. He like homework simply because it gave him something to do.

Although the 17-year-old's interests differed in the area of schoolwork, he proved to be American in others. For instance, he liked playing on his host family's (Hickeys) TI99 computer. He also relished traveling, was amused with scuffling around, and enjoyed all types of food.

At the beginning of the school year his activities were guided by ex-Sam teacher Mrs. Judith Stringham, and senior Ramzi Gillespie served as his host brother. But by the second semester, Samai took residence in the Hickey home, where senior David Hickey became his new host brother.

In November, Samai journeyed with Mr. J. C. Pounds and David to some land in Cleburne, owned by the Pounds and was entertained there with more activities he enjoyed, such as hunting and fishing.

Samai was used to such outside activities for his family also possessed land. They maintained a farm about 300 acres in Eastern Thailand, Asia. That sounded huge to his Texan friends, but Samai pointed out, it was relatively small compared to other Asian Farms. On that farm the AFS student had three brothers and two sisters whom he said he missed but wrote once a month.

Samai also remembered the animals back in his homeland. He was fond of dogs and buffaloes. Wait a minute! Buffaloes? Again, yes. The courageous adventurer clarified, "I like to ride 'em."

In his Asian fields, Samai rode the buffaloes his father used to pull the plows.

American Field Service filled its year with activities centering around Sam's exchange student, Samai Tongmak.

Assorted parties for various reasons were held throughout the year, and students funded these activities by selling calendars in September.

The club also sponsored Sam's annual AFS Day, where exchange students from the metroplex talked to students.

Programs Occupy Singers

Displaying their talents, Sophomore and A Cappella Choirs put on three programs. The first was "50's and 60's Rock 'N' Roll," in which melodies of the Beatles' and Beach Boys' hits were sung.

The next performance was a December special called "Christmas at Sam." "White Christmas" and "Alleluia" were two of the choirs' songs.

In winter, the department sold cheese and sausage assortments to fund the end of the year program, "Celebration '83." The major production combined two minor themes, "In Concert" and "Of Stage and Screen" to produce the heading "Highway to the Stars."

Melodies from "Annie," "Chorus Line," and the melody "A Tribute to Air Supply" were among the leading numbers. The ending songs were "Flying Free" and "How Do We Say Goodbye," as well as the traditional, "Where the Roads Come Together."

To raise money for the club, members sold coupon books, Homecoming programs and operated the school store and candy vending machine in the teachers' lounge.

Sophomores enrolled in the DECA classes took one hour of career exploration, while juniors and seniors learned co-operation. In co-op, the students attended class for one hour and other required subjects and then went to work for which they received three credits.

DECA, combining fun and labor, planned several activities for the year. One such was a pizza party in April, the employer appreciation banquet in May, DECA Olympics, a Christmas party and an end of the year party.

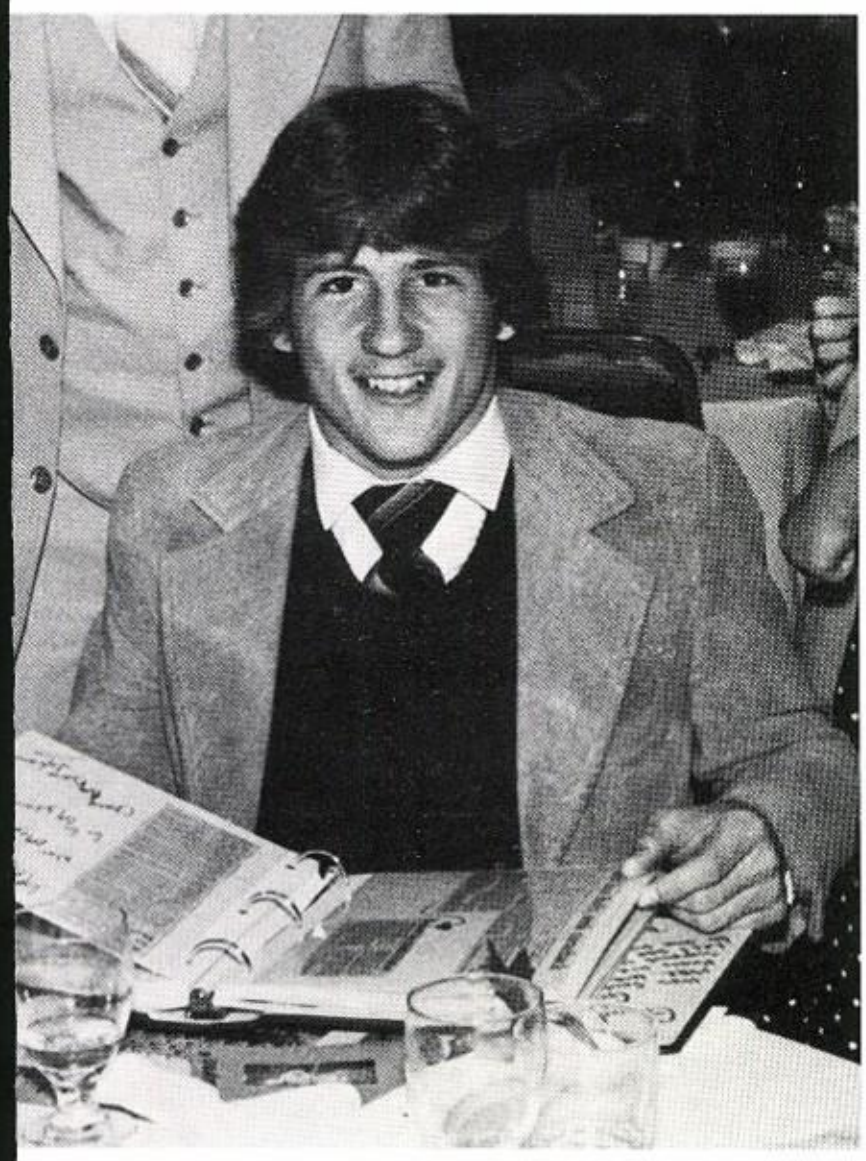
Can Secrecy Prove Rewarding?

Spirit Sisters Say 'Yes'!



Spirit Sisters was the group of 150 girls who gave goodies to the varsity football players once a week.

Often times they treated the guys to cookies, candy, even whole cakes. T-shirts were also presented to the varsity team. The purpose, of course, was to boost the players' morale.

At the end of the season, the young ladies hosted the men at a banquet. The affair was held at Ramada Inn in North Arlington. Morris Kiker's sister, Donna Baker, was named "Outstanding Spirit Sister of the Season."

Senior football player Tod Chapman looks eagerly through a scrapbook that his Spirit Sisters' gave him. He discovered their identity at a banquet held Nov. 16, at the end of football season.

To fund the banquet, Spirit Sisters held a one day car wash at Hillcrest Baptist Church. Approximately $200 was raised.

Mrs. Hannah Goolsby sponsored the club for the first year. She regarded the organization favorably saying, "It gives some girls who are not exactly popular a way to take part in the activities."

Spirit Sisters also supported the guys' basketball and baseball teams.

Heading the club was president Beth Farnik. Vice-president Kim Hobby, and treasurer Anna Dalton supported her. Chairpersons Donna Baker and Traci Garner helped also.

Tex-Annes March to 1st Place

Every morning from 7:30 to 9, a group of girls practiced dance routines. They worked on sharpness, versatility, and memorizing steps.

Dances were performed at the varsity football and basketball games. Skills acquired were shown off at the SMU summer camp in July where a first place trophy was earned in the marching division. In the jazz category, a second place trophy was awarded.

Tex-Annes enjoyed a banquet held at K-Bob's where Beth Pope and Trisha Thomas were voted outstanding members.

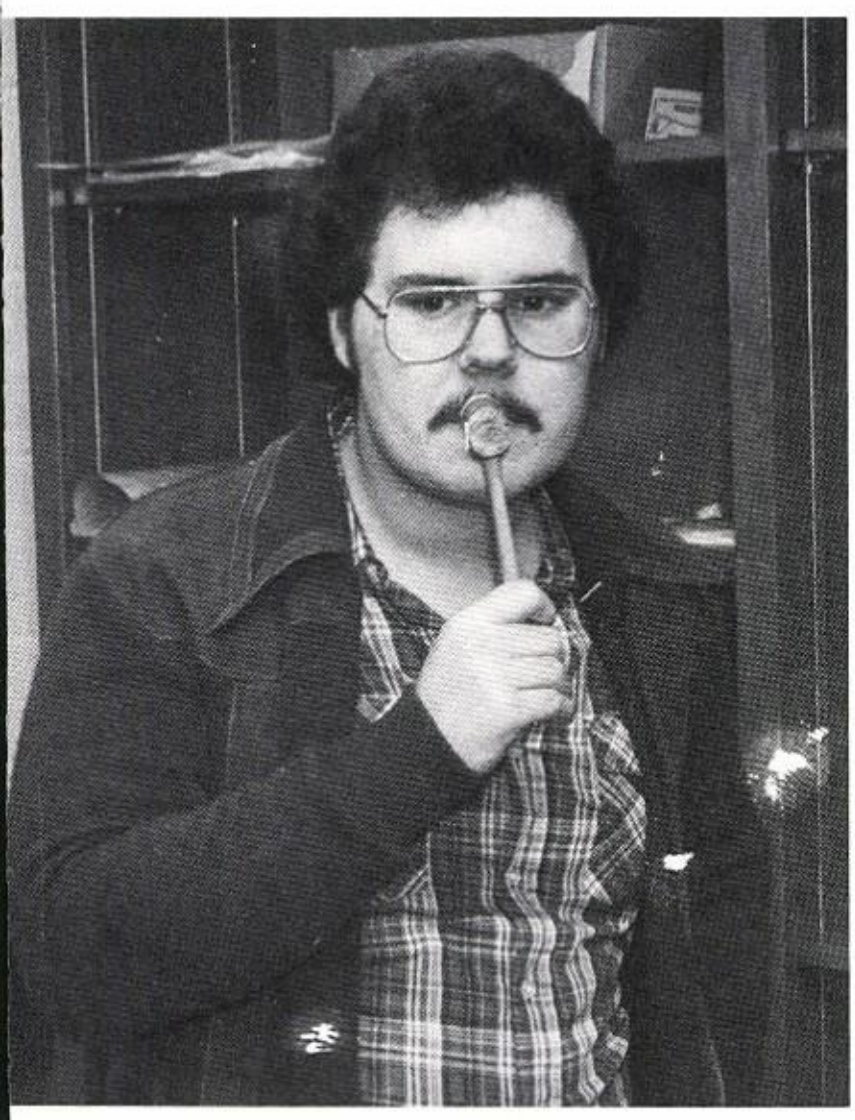
Snoopy Reporters Chase Down News



There are some very nosy people in the school, but 11 of the snoopiest people in school belong to the Texans Talk Staff, whose job it is to pry.

As journalists, they are obligated to bring the news to their readers. To do this, they probed into all of the activities that have anything to do with school and investigated further the most newsworthy ones.

After the snooping, the staff funneled what they learned into stories and then put these stories onto the eight pages of the paper.

By third period every other Friday morning, the student body and faculty were found digesting the group effort.

Reading the paper, they may have noticed a much freer style of writing in some of the features and columns and a more modular look on the pages. Editor Kent Rice explained, "When I learned that I was to become editor of the Texans Talk for 1983, I resolved to try my best to make it a top newspaper."

Kent went on to say that when he actually took over the job, he realized he still wanted to write insane columns; thus came the unusual mixture of chaos and structure in the Texans Talk.

Senior Kent Rice puts his mind to work while thinking of an eyecatching story for the Editor's page.

Ceremony Makes Early Arrival

Tradition was changed twice, as the annual Thespian induction was held earlier in the year and it also became a ceremonious occasion.

The formality saw close to 30 nervous neophytes awaiting induction mid-way through the first semester. This was too late to join returning members who saw the musical "Sweeney Todd."

Thespians tried to create some Christmas cheer by selling wrapping paper and cards, but many orders were not filled due to an apparent paper shortage.

The year was brought to an end as juniors and sophomores sponsored the drama banquet for seniors.

Texans Experience Disappointing Season

Sam Houston's Varsity Football Texans had a disappointing season, as they won two games, falling prey to seven teams. The team opened the year with a 20-3 loss to the Grand Prairie Gophers. Then the Texans traveled to Burleson to defeat the Elks 32-6. Lamar was the next contestant for the Texans at UTA. The Texans lost a tough game 17-16 in the closing seconds of the game.

In front of a large crowd at Homecoming, the Texans blanked the Haltom Buffaloes 24-0. For the next two weeks, the Texans traveled to Hurst. Against the Trinity Trojans, the outcome was 35-6, Trojans' favor. Later the Texans played L.D. Bell for a 36-0 defeat.

Later the Texans fell just short of a victory, 7-9 against the Richland Rebels.

Against the Arlington Colts, the Texans lost again 20-13. For the final game of the year against the Bowie Volunteers and the last game to be played as Texans for the seniors, the Texans went down 31-10.

Leadership in Sports Displayed by Seniors

During the 1982 varsity football season, the Texans were led by dominant seniors, such as Doug Meacham, Jimmy Green, Ken Pennie, Vic Rehonic, Kevin Beale, Albert Charanza, and Morris Kiker.

Captain Doug Meacham, who played both offense and defense, was a leading figure in the Texans' game. Green, Pennie, and Rehonic were an important trio in scoring Texan touchdowns.

Charanza, playing linebacker and fullback, turned in an impressive performance during the Homecoming game with 19 tackles. Beale played defensive tackle for the Texans and had an equally good year.

JV Strikes It Rich

The junior varsity football team opened up the season with four quick wins. The sophs opened up the year with a close game against the Grand Prairie Gophers, 21-20.

The next week the Texans shut out the Burleson Elks, 35-0. City rival Lamar was the next contest for the JV, who won that game 12-10.

When the Texans traveled to Haltom to play the Buffaloes, the Texans thrashed them 28-0. Against the Trinity Trojans, the JV played to its only defeat of the district year. At Wilemon, the Texans had a close game against the Bell Raiders, 7-6, and won.

From then on they had an easy time against the Richland Rebels. The Texans sailed to a 13-6 victory. For the last game of the year against the Bowie Volunteers, the Texans coasted to a 28-14 victory.

Gals Find Season Shaky

"When the top five teams are mostly in this district, the good teams do come in fifth," said varsity volleyball Coach Sue Ellis. Coach Ellis thought the all-senior team did well considering it was the toughest overall season. The season was very competitive and it was one of the few years a district champ has had more than one loss.

The varsity spikers started with a second place trophy at the Richardson Tournament. At the Duncanville Tournament, the Texans beat first place Bowie for consolation winner.

Starting off the season with a loss in their first game against Arlington did not stop the spikers from going for district champs. The girls ended the first half of district play by defeating Haltom and Lamar and with losses to Bell and Bowie, giving the Texans a 5-3 the first half.

The girls started the second half with a whopping win to Arlington and Richland. The girls then had a loss to Trinity, a win to Burleson, and another two defeats to Bell and Haltom which destroyed their district hopes. The girls then got back on the track, beating Lamar and Bowie, and finished the second half record with 5-3, ending their overall record with 10-6.

JV Season Tough

The JV and B-team volleyball Coach Cindy Duval said that the girls had a lot of talent and played as well as some varsities.

The all-junior team had a first half record of 6-2. The girls defeated Richland, Burleson, Bell, Haltom, Lamar, and Bowie. The girls' losses were to Arlington and Trinity.

The JV's second half record was 2-6, with wins against Richland and Haltom. The girls' losses were to Arlington, Trinity, Burleson, Bell, Lamar, and Bowie. The JVers were consolation winners at the Tarrant County JV Tournament.

Coach Duval said that the sophomore volleyball players were good skill-wise. The sophomores' season ended with a 7-1 record. The girls defeated Arlington (twice), Trinity, Burleson, Haltom, Bowie, and Richland, and ended their season with their one loss to Burleson. The girls earned the sophomore district crown.

BASKETBALL

B-Ball Places Third

With four starters back for the season, Sam expected to contend for a playoff berth. The Texans came close to reaching that goal, finishing third in district 7-5A behind Bell and Trinity. A one point overtime loss to the Trojans ended Sam's playoff hopes.

Highlights of the district season included a 6-0 record in city competition and a 62-59 overtime win against district champion L. D. Bell. The Texans relied on the strong inside play of David Bird and Cedric Williams who were the district's third and fourth leading rebounders, respectively, and on a balanced scoring attack. Bird, Williams and David Alexander scored in double figures while Jonathan Henderson (9.2 points) and Ken Pennie (7 points) rounded out the starting lineup.

JV Makes Mark As 'Best'

District champions, Sam Houston JV basketball finished the season with the best record, 24-2, of any JV in Sam Houston's history. Texan players also recorded a perfect 16-0 record in district play. JV roundballers used a tenacious full-court press and devastating fast break to help achieve their record, but the key ingredients were teamwork and total team contribution. The Texans excelled at hitting the open man and setting each other up for an easy basket. The talent on the team was so balanced that it created very competitive practice sessions which better prepared the Texans for the coming games.

Ladies Finish Third

Ms. Cindy Duval the varsity basketball coach, was pleased with the team's progress as the girls went through the season, but would have liked finishing better than third place. The team started off slowly, but the girls were inexperienced.

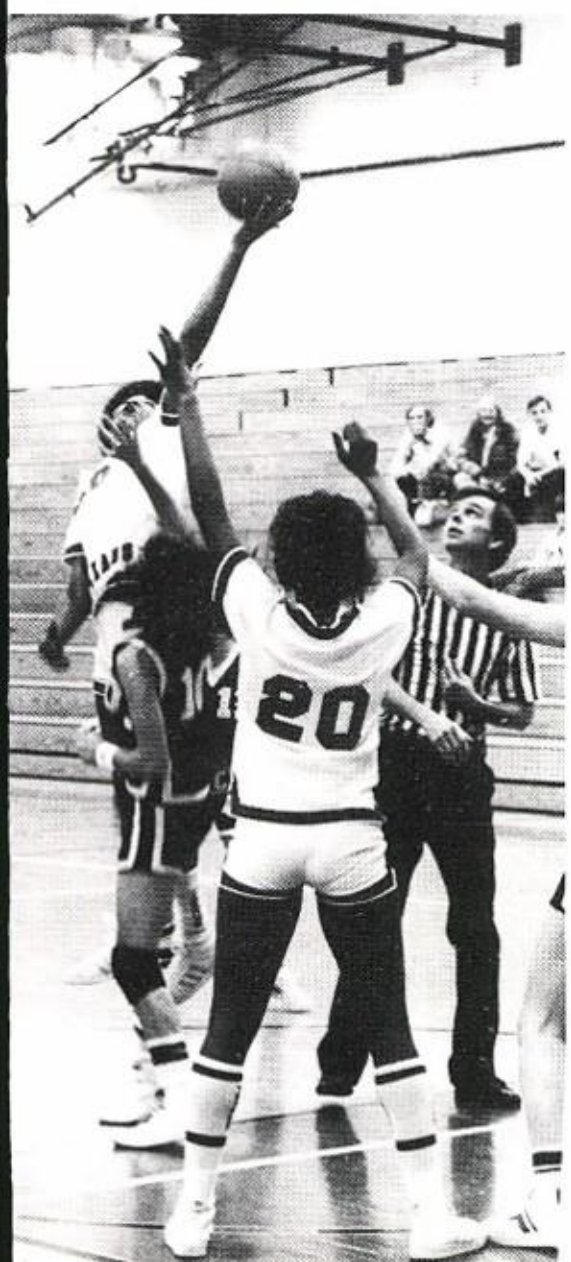
Coach Duval was proud the lady B-ballers won eight consecutive games before losing to Haltom in double overtime. In the final period, Pam Franklin made a free throw with no time on the clock to tie the game. The girls went on to lose in double overtime.

The girls improved a lot skillwise, thought Coach Duval. Meme Williams learned more about leadership and keeping up the intensity of the game. Cheryl Franklin did really well on her one-on-ones.

"The three sophomores (Leslie Griner, Claudette Pointer, and Pam Franklin) did an excellent job," said Coach Duval.

"In handling free throws, the girls really did very well under pressure," mentioned Coach Duval.

The Texans won second in the Birdville Tournament while the girls had to settle for third in district.



With no doubt, Claudette Pointer had this situation under control.

Turnovers Plague JV Fems

With a 9-9 district record, the junior varsity basketball team finished fourth. The Texans completed the season with a 13-12 record.

The Texans were led by Lisa Lang (captain), rebounding by Georgette Kleinpeter, assists by Raymi Howe, and steals by Sherry Stoker.

Wendy Hovend, Kelly Lambert (captain), and Beverly Moore were instrumental in leading the aggressive defensive attack, causing the other teams to have turnovers and making their fast break offense work.

JV Coach Owedia Kemp said, "We lost several close games at the beginning due to turnovers, mental mistakes, and pressure free throws." Coach Kemp throught the team was playing too inconsistently.

"The girls turned the season around and began to play complete games instead of three quarters or a good half," admitted Coach Kemp.

Lisa Lang agreed, "There was a lack of consistency in team work, but at the end of the season we pulled together."

There were several close games throughout the season and the JV worked hard. Coach Kemp said, "This was the closest JV I have ever had."

Sophomore Beverly Moore puts a lot of skill into her jump shots.

SWIMMING

Swimmers Win Second

Swimmers Pat Henz, James Alexander, Kevin Birdsong, Marty Buckholt, and Connie Menard made up the 1983 swimming team.

In the district meet, the boys placed second and qualified for regionals in the 200 medley and the 400 free relay. In the second events, Menard swam the 200 intermediate and the 100 fly. All advanced to regionals.

On April 2, a city wide banquet was held and the Super Senior Award went to Pat Henz. Most Improved went to Kevin Birdsong and James Alexander was Most Dedicated. Buckholt and Alexander both broke school records.

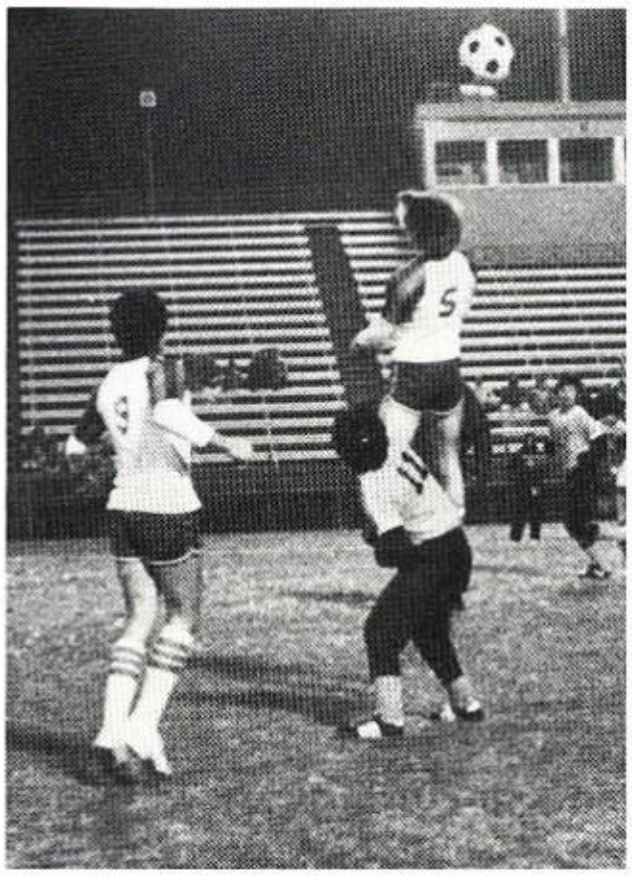
Season Breeds Confidence



The 1983 soccer season was a confidence builder. As a junior varsity the athletes excelled, yet lacked confidence in their ability on the varsity level. During the 1983 season, they proved to themselves that they had the materials to be winners.

The cornerstone of the team was defense as Randy Fulton, Randy Wooten, Thai Nguyen, Albert Charanza, and Mario Campos helped Thomas Mozjesik record 10 shutouts. With the defense set, Coach Powers stressed his philosophy, "out shoot the opponent."

Netters Earn Awards

Awards became commonplace for the Texan netters who had a much better than average season, according to Coach Dixie Calahan.

They received two fourth place trophies in the Trinity Round Robin Tournament in the fall. Also in the Trinity Tournament, the team won second.

During the spring, Roy Jones and Roger Mills won second place in doubles in the Martin Tournament. Also in the Martin Tournament was Suzanne Garner who was a semifinalist.

Although the Texan netters lost in the first round in district, Coach Calahan said, "The team really improved a lot this year, especially in dual matches." Coach Calahan also noticed that the girls on the team improved more this year.

Inexperience Hurts Golf

Returning only one member from last year's fourth place team, the golf team was left with a young, inexperienced group of players.

They participated in junior varsity tournaments in Mesquite, Garland, and Fort Worth. The district tournament was held at Squaw Creek in Fort Worth.

The 1983 golf team included: (front row) Tony Benz, Greg Birdwell, Paul Douglas, Jerry Arcand, Wayne Hovend, (back) Bill McGinney, David Maxwell, Keith Sims, and David Komrow.

Tracksters Capture 1st Place

At UTA April 22-23, the SHHS Tracksters came out on top with the District 7-5A Championship. The team placed in 11 out of 15 events entered.

In the 100 meter dash, Mike Allen got first and Mike Crosby placed third. Mike Allen took first in the 200 with Ken Pennie and David Alexander taking fourth and fifth. Both the 400 and 1600 meter relays came in first.

"We needed to beat Trinity in the 1600 meter relay and that's exactly what we did," Coach Guy Shaw Thompson commented.

Three long jumpers placed with Mike Crosby coming in first. For the other events, David Fickett took first in pole vaulting, and Peter Cartsunis placed sixth in discus.

Dedication Important

"Finding athletes who possess both talent and dedication is what coaches search for in their runners," said Track Coach Connie Thomas.

Although the season was plagued with bad weather, injuries and illnesses, the year was a good one.

Valerie Trinidad was voted as Outstanding Athlete and Claudette Pointer was an alternate to regionals in the 200 meter dash.

"Some runners are very naturally blessed with running ability — but if they lack the dedication to train effectively, monitor progress, and implement changes or suggestions from their coach, they will never compete with the best," mentioned Coach Thomas.

Coach Connie Thomas gives the track girls some pointers while they warm up.

Hardballers Overcome Disappointment

After being chosen to win district in 1983, it was a disappointing year for the varsity baseball team. The hardballers finished 7-9 in district and 10-11 for the season, but on the positive side of a losing year, these young men learned a much more valuable lesson than winning a district championship.

"There were some individual honors and there were some kids that had good years and never gave up," said Coach Tommy Cantrell.

Clark Cantrell led the district in home runs and was an All-District pick. David Snipes was All-District outfield on first team.

David Bird was second team All-District and Craig Dyer, Mark Jones, Darrell Vick, and Tommy Coates were honorable mention All-District.

"These young men put in a lot of hours and won the American Legion Championship. I guess that was why so much was expected of them," said Coach Cantrell.

Steve Barrientos led the team in hits with a .432 average. Ralph Littlejohn led the team in stolen bases with six. He also had a .300 average. Darrell Wood led in RBI's with 14.

Board Opens MHS, Class BHS

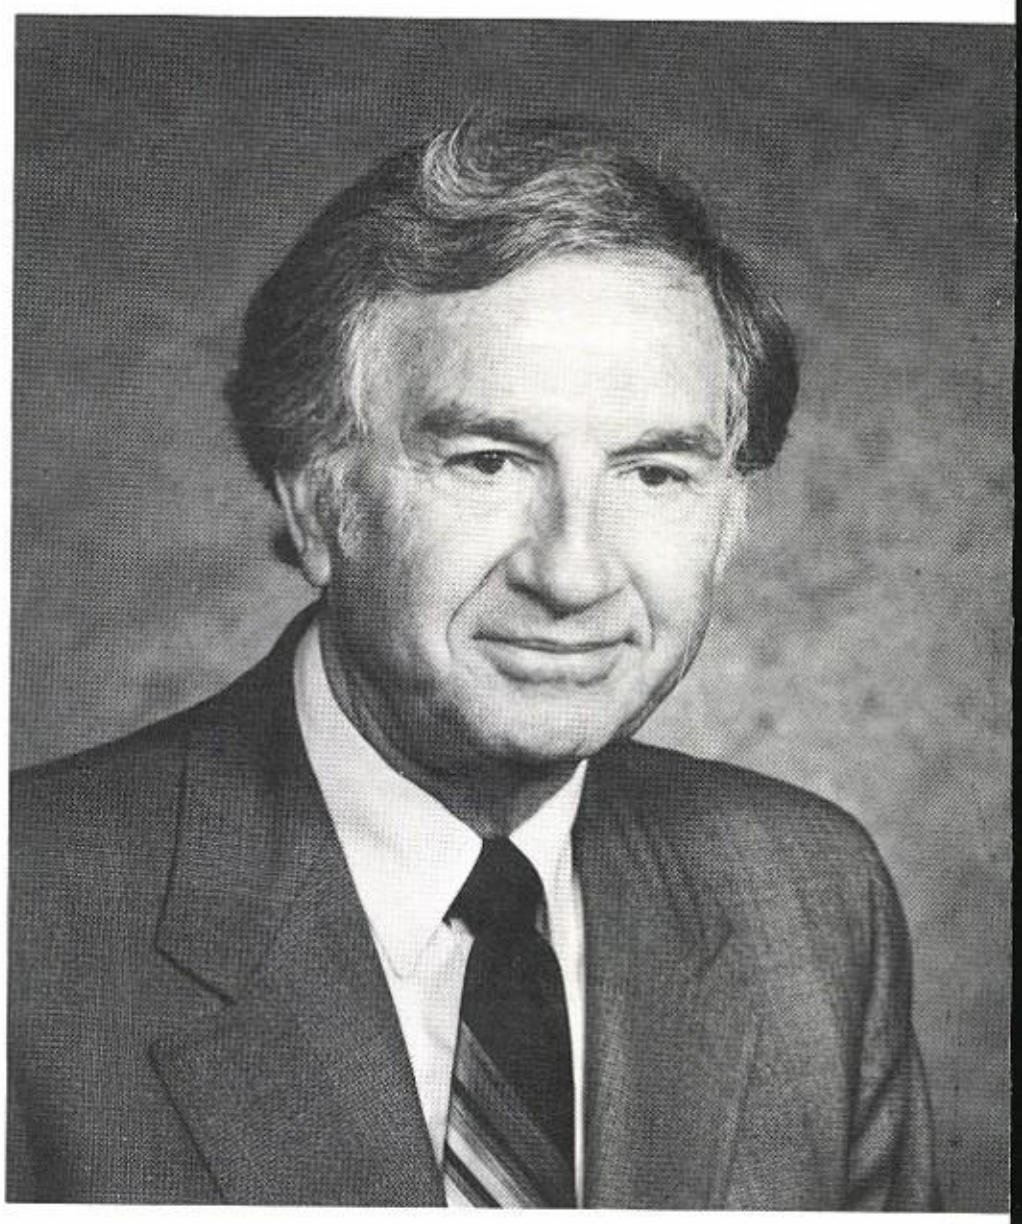
The members of the 1982-1983 school board are Mr. Rick Cline, secretary; Dr. Tom Telle, president; Mr. Eroy Harry, vice president; Mr. Joe Jesko; Mr. Clyde Godfrey; Mrs. Diane Patrick; and Mr. Gary McClaskey, assistant secretary. In the spring, Mr. Harry replaced Dr. Telle as president.

Arlington School Board members opened one high school and closed another in just nine months.

With the $68.5 million budget, the elected officials opened Martin High School in August and planned renovations of Nichols and Carter Junior Highs.

On May 16, the board voted 4-3 to convert Bowie High school to a junior high.

Mr. J. W. Counts is superintendent of the Arlington Independent School District.



Uncle Bud Is a Friend to All

Mr. B. H. Remynse proclaims that the Texans will put an end to the Elks.

He was called "Uncle Bud," but his role resembled that more of a father — he was "always there."

Principal B. H. Remynse was the figure who quieted the crowd at class meetings, hurried drifters to their rooms, and each Friday, reminded all to buy the few remaining game tickets.

His secretary, Mrs. Diane Ruff explained, "He does so much, and he's always everyplace. He hasn't missed a football game since he's been here . . . and he attends as many other school activities as he can."

This father-uncle image has been serving the school as leading man for 11 years this spring. Instrumental in providing computers in classrooms and the new sound system, Mr. B. H. Remynse encouraged the familiar phrase that precedes him — "always there."

VPs Get Involved

Vice principals Mr. G. A. Glenn, Mrs. Tommie Williams, and Mr. Monroe Bicknell found their days filled accomplishing the tasks that kept the school running.

Mr. Glenn was in charge of the duties that revolved around substitutes, custodians, and insurance.

Dean of Boys, Mr. Bicknell, took care of boys' attendance, hall duty, and one-third of the teacher's assessment.

Girls' attendance, the lunch program, and daily bulletin were Mrs. Williams' responsibilities.

Mr. Monroe Bicknell handles all the boys' absentees.

Counselors Master Computers

Counselors experienced frustration while learning to use the new computer. An added frustration was having to wait on the system during the busy time of the year.

Although there were many spots to iron out, all of the counselors agreed that in the long run, the unit would prove valuable.

Sam also welcomed back an ex-faculty member, Mrs. Carolyn Hammonds, as a counselor.

Mrs. Edney commented on how there were some "real" temperatures in students who claimed to be sick and dying.

Cafeteria workers boiled over in excitement and hard work and were managed by Mrs. Goldie Vaughan. They served approximately 500 students each day.

Changes Add Life to Languages

Languages saw the renewal of an old friend, creative writing.

This popular course taught students how to better use resources available and their imaginations in their writings. It encouraged them to also find their own style.

To the dismay of many teachers, the popular series, Insights, was replaced with a new curriculum on the honors level that stressed classical and ancient works.

Foreign language classes continued growing. Teachers spiced up their curriculums with field trips. They also spent time exploring foods and everyday life of different countries.

Teacher Paces Time, Creates After-Hours

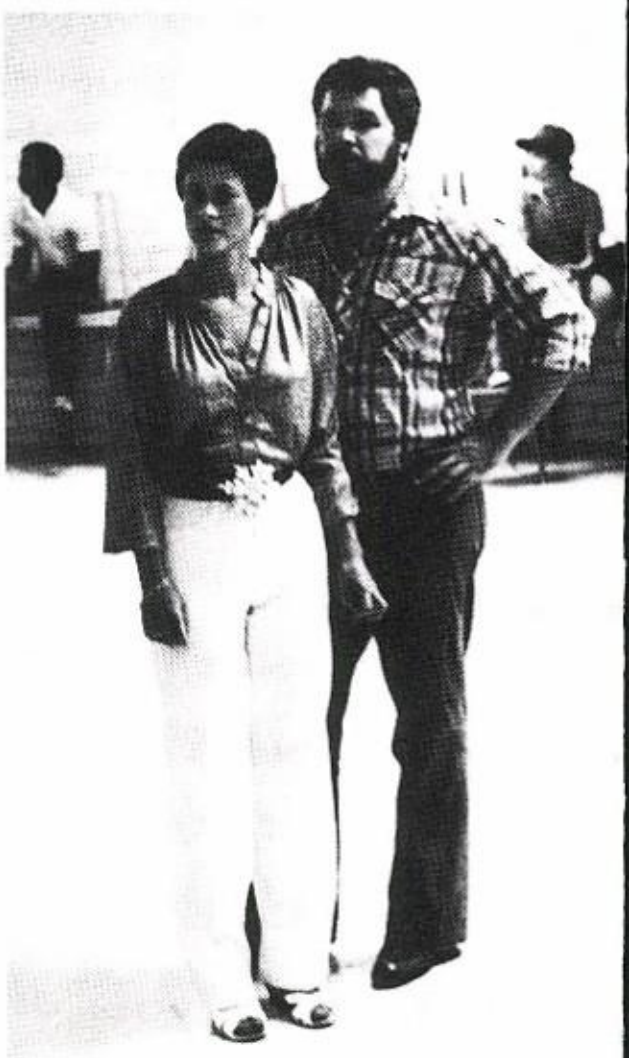
To all at school, Mr. Mike Anderson is known merely as an American History teacher, but at the sound of the 3:30 bell his metamorphosis instantly begins. Mild mannered Mr. Anderson is secretly a metal sculptor.

He creates decorative brass, copper and nickel-silver buckles. He explains, "Buckles are temporary things. They will last only until the fad goes out, so as long as they are in style and sell, I will continue to make them and make money with them."

Once, however, Mr. Anderson did let his sculpting take full charge of his finances; this was before be began teaching in 1980. In addition to buckles, he has made wall hangings, paper weights, and mobiles. He has introduced statues, artistic mailboxes, fountains, and even a motorized sculpture into separate and private collections scattered throughout the world.

Locally his work has been displayed at the Forum 303 Mall.

The skill was self-taught and his first piece of art, completed in 1974, was a brass butterfly desk ornament. After that, he produced more designs but did not market his trade until 1975.



As Texans boogie to the beat, Mr. Mike Anderson and wife think about the past.

Extra Hours Create Excellence

Sam Houston's Fine Arts Department unified this year to get its needed publicity.

Although this department was often placed in the shadow of sports, it received recognition, which was due mostly to its dedicated staff.

Extra hours were put in by these faculty members. From rehearsals to deadlines, it was their dedication that created a name synonomous with excellence.

The department consisted of students interested in areas from art to speech.

A majority participated in UIL contests and activities or events held by other organizations.

Teachers also decided to revive the Fine Arts Festival, which was tradition at the "Old Sam," but has never been seen in this building. The festival, held in April, showcased diversified talents throughout the school.

Field trips, after school practices and rehearsals in band, choir, drama, and speech, paste-up of the newspaper, deadlines for the yearbook, and special school projects for art made active students and teachers appreciate sleep.

The Big Sam Faculty helps liven up a rally with Texan spirit.

After reading the attached note, Mrs. Barbara Thomas laughs about the dead plant she received as a birthday present from an admirer.

STAR Is Seen at Sam Houston

Science and Math classes saw many additions throughout the year. Biology I students were required to take the STAR exam.

The city-wide test quizzed students on learning objectives. This pilot program was given before the end of both semesters.

The Math Department introduced new books on the Trigonometry and Calculus levels, which proved complimentary to last year's additions.

Trade Classes Taught

Students, with a wide variety of interests, were able to take courses in those specific fields.

Due to the weak housing market and troubled economy, building trades program took on a temporary classroom instead of a house.

Cosmetology instructed girls on beautification, while other vocational classes gave students first hand experience.

Business courses prepped students for jobs in upcoming years. A wide variety of classes were available to students from accounting to shorthand.

Computers were also introduced briefly. The department is hoping for many more to be accessible for the near future.

Other courses offered were typing, office procedures, record keeping and data processing.

Texans or Vikings?

Sam and Lamar have one thing in common. The mothers of three Lamar Juniors are Big Sam faculty members.

Mrs. Lavoyce Avery, Mrs. Tempe Hatter, and Mrs. Martha Warner all have torn loyalties because of the situation.

Mrs. Avery ended up sitting directly in the middle of the stands during a Sam-Lamar basketball game.

Does it bother their kids? Mrs. Hatter and Mrs. Avery say no, but Mrs. Warner's son was often embarrassed to be seen with a "Sam girl."

But even with some of their spirit being given to the less fortunate all three have given more than their share here.

Homemaking Aids in Home Life

Students saw that the key to happiness in upcoming years begins with their home life.

Various classes molded the students' ideas including Home and Family Living and Child Development. They created their own self-image, and the various methods of parenting were revealed.

Homemaking patched together numerous hours of first-hand experience, as they also learned the aspects of managing and decorating a house.

They held down duties such as answering phones, typing, filing, and even running computers. Mrs. Doris Brazzil found her days filled balancing the money sales and fund raisers brought in.

Although the librarians had duties, including processing books and handling student identification cards, they also found time to assist pupils working on their junior themes. Mrs. Jackie Florimonte introduced and familiarized sophomores and new students to the library.

Dean of girls' secretary Mrs. Joy Crossnoe explained the extent of their jobs, "Yes, we do just about everything!"

Graduation

Just Around Corner But Slow As Lunch

The morning classes drag on by, as I sit wondering, "Why, oh why, won't lunch get here — that's so cool! Just to be away from school."

As the noon bell rings, and the school I leave, it's home to watch the soaps on TV. Forget the classes and forget the books. Oh, how great my mother cooks!

As I look upon the clock, it's back to school around the block. It's really not the school I hate, but let's face it, I'm ready to graduate!

Money

In Everyday Life, A No Win Situation

Money here, money there — we never seem to know where all our money goes. We have the necessary things to buy, such as gas, food, clothes, make-up, and school supplies.

There are also the unnecessary things to buy, such as records, tapes, video cartridges, posters, concert tickets, and everything else we don't need, but enjoy.

Our bank account is also depleted when we take out dough to go to football games, basketball games, and school programs. Friday and Saturday nights just wouldn't be the same without going out on the town. It takes big bucks to go everywhere we want to go on those nights.

How would we live without money? How can we live with it?

Soda Pop

Editor 'Explains'
Decision by FDA

Students at Sam this year found out why they were not allowed to buy carbonated drinks during lunch. Most had thought that this ruling was just another way for the school establishment to be cruel. I informed the students of the actual reason behind the rule, an FDA decision.

I have, in Texans Talk, told the reason behind the law that no carbonated drinks could be sold at school during lunch. It seems that when a person would eat fish, drink a coke, and then read any work of Henry David Thoreau, a chemical would form in his stomach 17.8% of the time. This would cause an explosion that killed the student and several others around him.

Rehearsals

Hours of Hard Work For Sounds of Applause

The mental and physical strains are more than what some can handle. From 4 p.m. 'til? The question mark is seldom seven or earlier.

Rehearsals are never ending. When does anyone have time for homework or more important things like sleeping and eating? To be a TA or to have first or seventh period off is lucky. How much can be expected?

Is it worth it? The product is only as good as the effort given. The applause will tell.

Organization

Key Word

The key to staying organized is never getting behind. Being involved in numerous activities can be a lot of fun, but sometimes tiring. You have to plan every minute of your time, and there's no time to get sick.

Your school day may start early in the morning and won't end until late that night.

What keeps me going is the enjoyment I find . . .

Underclassmen

Bothersome Part Of Senior Life

They are a part of a senior's everyday life. Whether it be in one class, between classes, or in extra-curricular activities, juniors and sophomores are there — unfortunately. But, after much of the kidding is pushed aside, seniors take the lowly underclassmen under their wings and become examples for them.

They become big brothers and sisters, who give advice and support. They put up with the bothersome ones who are always doing something stupid or hilarious.

At other times, they are friends and peers. They are an inspiration, and they become a senior's equal, almost. They even deserve a little respect, but not often.

What pests, what scum. Don't they ever grow up? Sigh!

B. H. Remynse: Leader Of Early Morning Fun

As I sit on the not-so-soft bleachers, I watch as red, white, and blue blurr my vision, and the noises of the cheerleaders, band, and students combined fill my head with pain.

Posters exclaiming unsurpassed spirit, unbeatable power, and undiminished strength adorn the gym walls with patriotic colors. Each class, teacher, and club dons t-shirts advertising their affiliations. Every class tries to display its spirit: the brightest visually, the loudest vocally, and the most spirited numerically.

The band, bellguards, cheerleaders, and drill team add a combination of talent and spirit to make pep rallies more exciting.

Not one poster, drum, or short skit, one of the clubs or teachers make pep rallies as fun, exciting, or spirited as . . . B. H. Remynse.

blerating Little Sisters

Troublesome at Times But Worth It

Having a nger sister can have its ups downs, as do a lot of things. one thing is for sure, it is not .

st of all, you have to go ugh the initial steps of identification. I have been called "Kathleen." so many times, I have to stop and think, "Am I? Nah, I'm not."

Nothing is worse than everyone coming up to you, saying how much prettier she is! Pain! Oh, there is more. How about this? She gets more dates than I do and is asked to Homecoming by three different guys. She's only a sophomore!

Through all of these terrible moments that seem to cause a crisis for me, there is some tenderness.

I tend to forget how much of a problem she is when she says that I am her best friend. When she has a bad dream, she comes into my room just wanting to talk, and I am the one she looks up to when she has a problem with one of her many boyfriends.

I wouldn't tell her, but being a big sister isn't all that bad.

"Kristen, when I get married will you be my maid of honor?"

Expenses

It seems as if many high schoolers' wallets are slowly withering away from lack of lettuce, bread, dough, otherwise known as money. The great scientists have not developed edible plastic, so how do we expect to survive?

Every one of your friends makes you promise to buy something from them only. But do you remember? Noooooo! So you end up buying two articles instead of one. For three weeks, it's no lunch.

Then there is the dreaded Homecoming. The jaws of this annual event tear a big chunk out of the money for the new car. Depending on the place you decide to take your date, say for example, the Golden Arches (McDonalds), the price may be less. But if you go to some place fancy, like Cork and Cleaver, poof, zippo bucks.

Salespeople:

They Really Are Worth The Money

During high school years, teachers and students always remember how someone was trying to sell them something. How simple it was to say "No."

Well, do you realize that to the salesperson it wasn't just a "No." It was rejection. We (salespeople) put a lot into our job. It's not just raising money for that certain club or group; it's competition.

My sophomore year the Journalism Department started me on my way. We were selling trash cans. Now, first of all, you call them "litter baskets" instead of trash cans. It "smells" better.

Here's the pitch: "You know that group that puts out a terrific newspaper every two weeks without charging students and a super annual every year? Well, we're selling "litter baskets" and would really appreciate your buying one from us. It's for a scholarship. How about it?"

Or you are selling annuals. "One of these days you're going to be married with two or three children and your little kids are going to ask, 'What did you look like when you were in high school? If you don't have an annual, what are you going to do?"

See, it's not that we try to trick anyone. We're only looking out for you. We want you to have all the good things you deserve. The only requirement is you have to pay for them.

Ask Me, Please

Excitement Reigns For First Dance

Oh! That wonderous, magical first high school dance. An evening often thought about and eagerly anticipated. For girls a dance entails vast amounts of preparation and planning.

What to wear to the dance is the most important question and not all that easy to answer. You see, each group of friends must wear basically the same thing to make sure they are not the only ones at the dance wearing jeans, etc.

The second most common problem is paranoia. If a girl is asked out she has all week to worry about how she will walk and talk. Then if a girl does not get asked out, she gets to worry if she will be the only one dateless.

All of these problems, and this is just a dance. The worst is yet to come, like Homecoming or the Prom, or even the next school dance!

Workmen Give Sam New Coats of Paint

Every seven years Sam Houston is swamped with men in white uniforms with white paintbrushes and white paint. Students are moved from their classrooms to the library or cafeteria. Some lucky people are moved six or seven times!

Maybe in 1989 when the school needs painting again, they will switch to a different color. Red and blue stripes, perhaps?

Seniors Hit Jackpot In Subscription Sale

The senior magazine sales were a big success with students making more than $19,500 in total gross. This beat last year's total by more than $4000.

The seniors who sold one subscription by Sept. 16, the second day of the sale, received a waving Texan Flag. The first turn-in day was Friday, Sept. 17 with the $100 prize going to Vicki Layton, who sold $346.65 worth of subscriptions.

Vicki went on to win a television set for top sales overall.

All seniors selling 10 subscriptions got their cap and gown rented free. Seniors selling 14 subscriptions earned a prom ticket, their cap and gown, and a Class of '83 t-shirt. With 20 subscriptions, a student received all of the above and a second prom ticket.

Other prizes included a 10 pound Hershey bar, calculators, radios, and stuffed animals.

Fashionably Thin Is In

Gals Count Calories For Smaller Sizes

"Mom, I'm getting his dress."

"You're not trying it on?"

"No. It's a size 7."

"I thought you wore a 9."

"Oh, that's my plan. I know I'll lose weight if I get a smaller size."

"Are you sure? You only have two weeks until the banquet."

"Don't worry, Mom. It's just one size smaller. I can do it."

The first week is always so tempting, but as it passes you realize how much you want to diet, so you stick to it all the way. The end of the two weeks is finally here.

"How much did you lose?"

"Five pounds. I'm sure it will fit now. I'll go get the dress."

"Let me see it."

"Oh, no. It's a size 5."

Concerts

Loud Music Brings Fun, Excitement

After hearing how much fun concerts were, my friend and I recently attended one for a well-known group. It was an experience that I will never forget.

First of all, it was much more expensive than I thought. It was $12.50 for tickets, $5 for gas, $2 for parking, $2 for a coke, and $14 for a T-shirt. That's $35.50! I wasn't prepared to spend that much.

Also, the other concert-goers were a surprise to me. The girl sitting next to me wore a red mini-skirt and leg warmers. She had a button on her jacket that read "Bag Your Face."

After talking to her for a minute, she asked, "I mean like are you going to see Adam Ant for sure?" I said, "Is he any relation to Yogi Bear?"

"Come home, Lassie. Adam Ant is totally the best punker around!" she told me.

Fortunately the music started and the crowd cheered. Everybody listened to the music, and when the concert was over, we screamed for more.

Maybe for my next concert I will save up lots of money and get a miniskirt, leg warmers, and a button to put on my jacket that reads, "Gag Me With A Spoon."

Track Skills Help In Race to Class

On your mark, get set, go, and you had better hurry. Hey, get out of the way. I'm going to be late!

Don't walk so slowly. I've got to go from A-hall to F-hall. Watch it when you open that door. I have to protect my charming face.

Teenage Dating

Really Nerve-racking Experiences Can Prove Somewhat Rewarding

The first year igh school is also the beginning ating for a lot of people. If it is r first date, it can be a real ve-racking experience. You ays know that the girl is pulling her hair wondering what she wear. Then the guy thinks he real man because he shaves his first time.

When he picks her up, that is time when he is introduced to over-protective parents. As eryone knows, there is always "little" brother or sister who be expected to say some with yesterday." Many have heard, "Are ya'll getting married?" The one to embarrass her most, "Are you lover boy?"

Well, the two are finally on their way and then the girl wonders if he wants her to sit by him or the door (some prefer the door!) If you go to the movies and you're sitting in the dark theatre, he is thinking, "Should I put my arm around her or hold her hand?" Hint: Better to hold her hand. That way, after the movie, your hand will only be swollen when your arm would be dead.

When the two are back to her house, she invites him in. Remember the little brother and sister? Well, when the couple is sitting alone in the living room watching TV, little brother walks through and comes back with some food. She asks, "What are you doing with food at 11 at night?" Brother answers calmly, "My hamster is hungry."

The next day at school, all her friends come up to her with 20 different questions. One main question they ask is, "What did you talk about?" When she tries to answer, she can't because she figures out they didn't talk at all.

Updated Alphabet

Trials Of Abc's Still Linger On

I've only been going to school for 12 years, and I've already learned my ABC's:

A is for Aging fast from no sleep (due to teachers who insist one's entire locker must be taken home and memorized).

B is for Being smart and taking a whole bottle of aspirin along because it is commonly known that the ever-present headache will only worsen.

C is for Contemplating whether or not to let one's self be locked in the building when it's 75 degrees and the wind is gently blowing the sun around.

D is for Doubting one's ability of making it through the day.

E is for Erasing everything from one's paper that is needed for the next class.

F is for forgetting to apply one's deodorant.

G is for getting up 30 minutes after the alarm has gone off.

H is for Hearing Dad ask if any money is needed before he leaves, answering "no," then realizing the answer should have been "yes" as his car rolls down the street.

I is for Ironing an entire wardrobe, then finding the sole pair of matching shoes is being borrowed.

J is for Jumbling uninterpretable jibbrish in one's waking moments.

K is for Knowing it's five minutes until eight, then remembering the plans of doing that major assignment that morning.

L is for Leaving one's keys somewhere?!

M is for Making sure all doors are locked before exiting, then, once outside, hearing a soft "meow" from within, (evidence that the cat wasn't put out).

N is for Nothing going right before it has even begun.

O is for Oppressive thought of grades.

P is for Putting on no makeup because of a late running schedule.

Q is for Questioning one's sanity.

R is for Rewriting an assignment that now looks worse than the original copy.

S is for Snarling at every member of the family on first sight.

T is for Thanking the Lord that it's finally Friday.

U is for Urging Mother to call one in sick for an unexcused absence.

V is for Vocalizing one's many complaints to the ever-receptive stereo.

W is for Wearing jeans and a favorite T-shirt because of laziness or ironing a different wardrobe.

X is for Xing through just another one of the many school days on the calendar that count down the days till summer.

Y is for Yawning all through trigonometry

And Z is for Zzzing thoughts that penetrate one's brain.

"Now I've written my ABC's may I go home, pretty please?"

Hectic Shopping

Crowds, Indecision Complicate Christmas

While checking over my Christmas list for the second time, I discovered I didn't have a gift for Gina. The thought of having to hassle the Dec. 23 shoppers did not appeal to me, but you have to do what you have to do.

The traffic was unbelievably slow. I finally found a parking space 10 miles from the Sanger's entrance, and I made my way through the crowds only to be met by a herd of salesladies. "Buy this; buy that!" Did you ever notice that the things people want you to buy aren't on sale?

Christmas prices are outrageous. So are the holiday decorations that brighten the windows and entrances of each store. The ornaments are luring, and some tend to attract a shopper more than others. The store with the most elaborate trimmings is likely to get my business.

The Christmas season is busy and confusing. I just can't decide what to buy. Oh, well, I guess I'll settle for a Hallmark . . . I care enough to send the very best.

Value Education

Dropping Out of School Causes Cheated Feeling

When I have children, there is some important advice I will give them. Value your education, not because the law makes you or because adults say you should, but for yourself.

I left school at age 16. I wanted a good paying job and an apartment of my own. I got what I wanted.

At first it was exciting. Later, after the novelty wore off, depression set in. There is a feeling of being cheated when you see all your money going to room and board.

Every other person your age is saving for a car or college, but you can't. You have to pay the landlord, the electric company, and the groceries.

You say you don't care about the people in school, the activities, the prom, your diploma, or what your parents think. You do! Down deep you feel it. You can deny it as loudly as you like, but the pain is there just the same.

I couldn't help thinking of my family who didn't understand me anymore. I know they tried, but they couldn't. I couldn't make much sense of anything anymore either.

Everyone I knew envied me. I had all the freedom they wanted. Still, I wasn't happy. Finally I decided to go home and go back to school. That decision is the best I've ever made. I've never been happier.

Most people will skim over this writing and not think twice. But, I wish someone who knew would have said something to me, when I was 16.

Work

Teens Fill Pockets, Lose Time to Spend

As our soph years came to an end, we all wondered what was next. For most of us, our parents answered that question: "If you want to have fun and go out this summer, you're going to have to get a job."

By the time summer was here, we were all stuffed away somewhere so we could have spending money.

The first day was the hardest. We never knew what to do and no one really ever told us. Finally, we figured it out for ourselves.

The days went on and we worked harder and harder. We slept late and worked late, and the cycle went on. Then all of a sudden, we had all of this money and no time to spend it.

Attention, All Juniors

Epidemics Come In Three Stages

The symptoms are obvious to those who have it and to those around them, especially teachers.

Juniors, here's some advice which I wish I would have gotten:

The fall epidemic — the most uncommon of the three different ones. If you catch it here, you have got a long, hard road ahead of you.

There's not much to look forward to except that the first processes of graduation start. This is ordering your senior pictures, announcements, and caps and gowns. Look toward winter, where there are two holidays.

The winter epidemic — the longest of the three because your bed always seems to be more cozy than your first class.

Your salvation here is during the Christmas holidays, as long as your major partying stops when the season does.

Tell your teachers that you need a rest after finals because you are having brain hemorrhaging from studying so hard.

And finally, the spring epidemic — the most inhumane of the bunch, because graduation is so close, yet so far away.

So when the symptoms first appear, don't panic, but don't waste your time trying to find a cure either. You've got it for sure!

Yuk, Tests

Students Face Studying Blues

Oh, Lisa did you study for Mr. Anderson's test?"

"Yes, for three hours last night. When Roger dropped me off at 11, I started to study right away. Did you?"

"Well, I tried to, but my eyes just couldn't take the pressure, so I watched Magnum P.I. He's such a hunk."

"Heather, you know that Mr. Anderson's essay tests are killers. Why didn't you study?"

"I don't know. I guess I didn't feel like it. Say, could I borrow your worksheets? I lost mine."

"You know I have to study because if I don't, I won't pass. Then Roger and I can't go out anymore because of my grades."

"Come on, you know I didn't study," Heather begs.

Time passes.

"How did you do on that test, Heather?"

"I flunked."

Soaps

Who's With Whom? We'll Never Know

Today, soaps have become a necessity to life. People race to the nearest television set during their lunch to see what excitement is going on with "All My Children" and to see what's happening on "One Life To Live."

If they don't get to eat lunch that's okay, because it is a necessity to catch the soaps.

Then it is back to school or work. Addicts try to concentrate, but they just keep wondering, "Who will Asa's new love be?" or "Will Jenny get her baby back?"

Two o'clock rolls around and the "General Hospital" craze starts.

With such a busy schedule, who has time to go to class?

"Well, okay. I'll get the manager, but let me warn you, he's in a rotten mood."

"What do you want?"

"Well sir, we are from the Sam Houston Annual Staff and we were wondering if you would like to take out another ad in our annual?"

"No!"

"But, sir,"

"No! I said."

"But sir, our school has 1500 students who will see your ad in the annual. It is a really good investment, and a great way to advertise. It is guaranteed to increase your sales, and if you pay now, you will receive a $5 discount."

Cable Crazy

Pay TV Brightens Colorless Evenings

In 1980 BC (Before Cable), a relaxing evening of television could, no doubt, enfold as follows: Channel 4, title, music, opening scene, commercial. More music, more story line cut short of a conclusion, preceded by a crescendo of music and — you guessed it — another commercial.

What genius-turned-multi-millionaire ever sold the human masses 18-20 hours of tedious commercials interrupted every so often with movies, sitcoms, or news? Maybe I can still sell the Brooklyn Bridge!

Mounds of American people bought this as entertainment. Then our Saviour appeared on the horizon — Cable TV.

With the advent of the tiny box on our TV, our sphere of pleasure was indeed broadened: Full length movies, uncut and uninterrupted, Broadway shows, music or comedy specials, and a great parent pleaser — MTV.

Wow — and I thought we might have to go back to talking for fun.

Mickies

Little Sophomores Suffer Persecution

Oh, the trials and tribulations of being an underclassman! Being a sophomore would not be so bad if not for the upperclassmen.

They make it so difficult on the little Mickies. They think that since they got roughed up when they were sophomores, they can make it just as bad on us.

Even though sophomores get the brunt of it, juniors get knocked around too. Upperclassmen will never let one get away with anything. Make one little mistake, and the world will come tumbling down! They never let underclassmen forget their stupidity.

Underclassmen always hear, "They are so stupid!" "They know nothing-about nothing!" "What airheads!" "They are always here in body, but never in mind!"

If an underclassman doesn't hear one of these remarks, he is not an underclassman! There is only one hope for the "low-life" of the school. Someday they will be seniors, and then . . .

Your teachers are always one of the first to notice that you've got spring fever. A couple of obvious symptoms are not doing your homework in class, bu instead drawing yourself doing a swan dive off a diving board, o playing tennis with a friend.

Later your family begins to see the fever in you, that for wha you have finally has no cure. So what do you do? Nothing, just si back, and enjoy it.

Slipping Paper . . . Art of Fine Skill

''Am I passing notes? Oh, well maybe. You want to see it? Oh, no. Please don't take it up! Please don't put it on the bulletin board.''

That's a dilemma many face when they get caught passing notes. The art of note passing has many forms. Some pretend another dropped it, so they'll be nice and pick it up.

Many devise sneaky ways. Others use the same old trick of ''Pass while the teacher is not looking.''

However the art of note passing is done, you can be assured that it will live on!

People expect too much of a younger brother. For example, "But, Ms. Davis, just because Jeff could type . . ." or "But, Mom, Brad likes to keep his room clean."

Two extra names and personalities, other than your own, are hard to live up to. It makes me have to spend a lot of time searching for my own identity.

For the last time, I am not their brother. They are my brothers and lucky to have me!

Camp

'Could I Please Come Home Today?'

Dear Mom and Dad,

I got to camp yesterday afternoon. It was a long trip and a bumpy bus ride. The cabins aren't air-conditioned, and there are green and black things growing in the shower stalls. I really lost my appetite when I found the same green and black things in my breakfast.

We went hiking last night, and I fell and sprained my ankle. I landed in a poison ivy patch, so now I'm breaking out in little tiny red bumps.

All the girls in my cabin fight over the outlets to plug in their hairdryers, curling irons, and hot rollers. One girl even got a black eye.

We had cabin clean-up this morning, and I found stuff that I didn't even know I brought.

The counselors are a real pain. They are always yelling, and they snore. We tape-recorded one snoring last night and played it for everyone at breakfast. She turned red, and I'm not sure if she was mad or embarrassed.

I've been here a whole day. Do you think I could come home?

Vegetarian Thanksgiving

Turkey Day Hard For Picky Eater

Thanksgiving can be a trying time for a vegetarian. Since I'm a meatless, eggless, health food addict myself, I know. This Thanksgiving was especially hard for me because it was "family reunion year." Although I'd been to many of the holiday get-togethers before, this was my first time since becoming a vegetarian.

Things were going fine at the reunion until the family sat down to eat. As a huge plate of turkey was passed to me, I exclaimed, "No, thank you, Uncle Fred. I'm a vegetarian."

"What? I thought your family was Southern Baptist. Does this mean you're going to start wearing those funny robes and shave your head?"

"No, no. You don't understand. A vegetarian is a person who doesn't eat meat."

"Why in tarnation would you want to do that?"

"Because I don't believe in killing defenseless animals."

"Oh, you always were the odd one in the family."

By this time a crowd of relatives had come over to listen.

"What do you mean you're a vegetarian?" Great Aunt Millie said. "The Williams' are German. Of course, you could take after Cousin Phil. I think he was part German and vegetarian."

While they were busy argu about what a vegetarian actu was, I quietly slipped out of dining room. I returned a hours later hoping everything blown over.

Well, they had forgotten about the vegetarian busin but all of the arguing made th work up an appetite. There wa a thing left to eat.

As I sat down in the corner, visions of cheese sandwic dancing in my head, one of good-looking male cou walked over.

"Gee, you look starved. W to go out for a hamburger!"

Life Never Boring For Yellow Hounds

R-R-R-R; What? Bang! R-R-R-Roooar! Oooh, what a nice peaceful sleep, but they're gonna have to do something about that parking lot. It's killing my support springs. Well, where are we going to drink this morning?; Exxon, Texaco, or maybe Merle Sugg's Gas and Beer Pit. Ah, that was very good. Merle, give my compliments to the oil company.

Well Doc, who do we get today: jocks, Janes, or regular busriders? Jocks? Oh boy! Well, put 'em on and keep them quiet. Why are they always segregated? Blacks in back, whites in front.

Why don't they shut down those radios. I know, a good backfire ought to keep them quiet. Bang!! There, that should keep 'em quiet for a while. What, there already? Good, get off! Now I can get back to more important things, like sleeping. Let's see, who was that pretty little V-8 I was dreaming of? Oh yea! K-pow-pow-pow! M-M-M-M, what a carburetor.

Getting Up Proves Hard Work for Some

R-r-r-i-n-g Oh no! Not already. I have barely even slept. I'll just push the doze button and get up in 10 minutes. That will help a lot. By then I'll be ready to get up.

R-r-r-i-n-g! It couldn't have been 10 minutes. I will hurry a little bit more than usual

R-r-r-i-n-g! I can already tell this is going to be a terrible day. I have to get up. I have to get up NOW!

This floor is freezing. I sure would like to get back under my electric blanket.

I hate trying to fix the water in this shower. It is always either too hot or too cold. Why can't it be just normal?

I really need to iron my clothes. I can't go to school in wrinkled clothes. Ouch! I burned myself, and I'm not the first thing I've burned this morning. I burned my toast, too. Why does everything go wrong when you're running late?

I just might make it on time if I hurry. Hey, has the bell rung yet?

Should A Woman Be President?

"What a joke!"

Craig Cross, Senior

No

A woman President? What a joke! Try to see my point, ladies, the idea is crazy. God made man first, not woman. I'll be the first to admit that this is a red-blooded, male chauvanistic statement, but it is a true, red-blooded, male chauvanistic statement.

Now don't get me wrong. I am far from what many people consider chauvanistic. I believe women can do some things as well as, if not better than a man, but is it our fault if it happens to be housework?

I do feel sorry for those women whose names are disgraced because of the bubbly blondes and brunettes in the world. I doubt if I will offend any of these airheads because they are probably unable to read this.

Women are weak and too sensitive to hold such a physically and mentally draining office. There have been women who were capable of serving this office, but the number of qualified men far out-weighs the number of qualified women. The majority rules, as usual.

Women's position in society has been caused by our environment. Did you catch that, Mrs. Lewis? Pretty liberal, huh? The status quo has changed, but only slightly. It is doubtful that women Presidents will be seen in the near future. It is hopeful that they will never be seen!

"Sounds wonderful"

— Kristen Hackenberg, Senior

Yes

A woman for President? My word, sounds wonderful, doesn't it? The idea seems to be quite conceivable. After all, God did make man first, only to witness her biggest mistake which, of course, she then corrected by creating a far more superior human.

I firmly believe that men are capable of tasks and functions that men are supposed to accomplish. But, being a construction worker or stevedore is not quite what the oath of Presidency had in mind.

What have we got to look forward to with a cowboy actor running the country? What's next — Howard Cosell?

Women have been able to handle physical and emotional pressures for years. After all, look what they had to put up with, men and their idiosyncrasies.

We wouldn't have a trillion dollar deficit, high unemployment, high interest rates, and high inflation if it weren't for men always wanting to take charge. They've done such a sterling job in high office, what could be worse?

It is a known fact, especially to chauvanists, that women are quite handy at housework and rearing children. It somehow pains me to see, though, what would happen if men decided to run the household as they did the country.

Much to the chagrin of the male chauvanist population, women have come out from under their life-long oppression. They have become leaders, statesmen and, factually speaking, have been found to be the wealthiest, smartest, and strongest of the self-made human.

That's not bad for a little old homemaker.

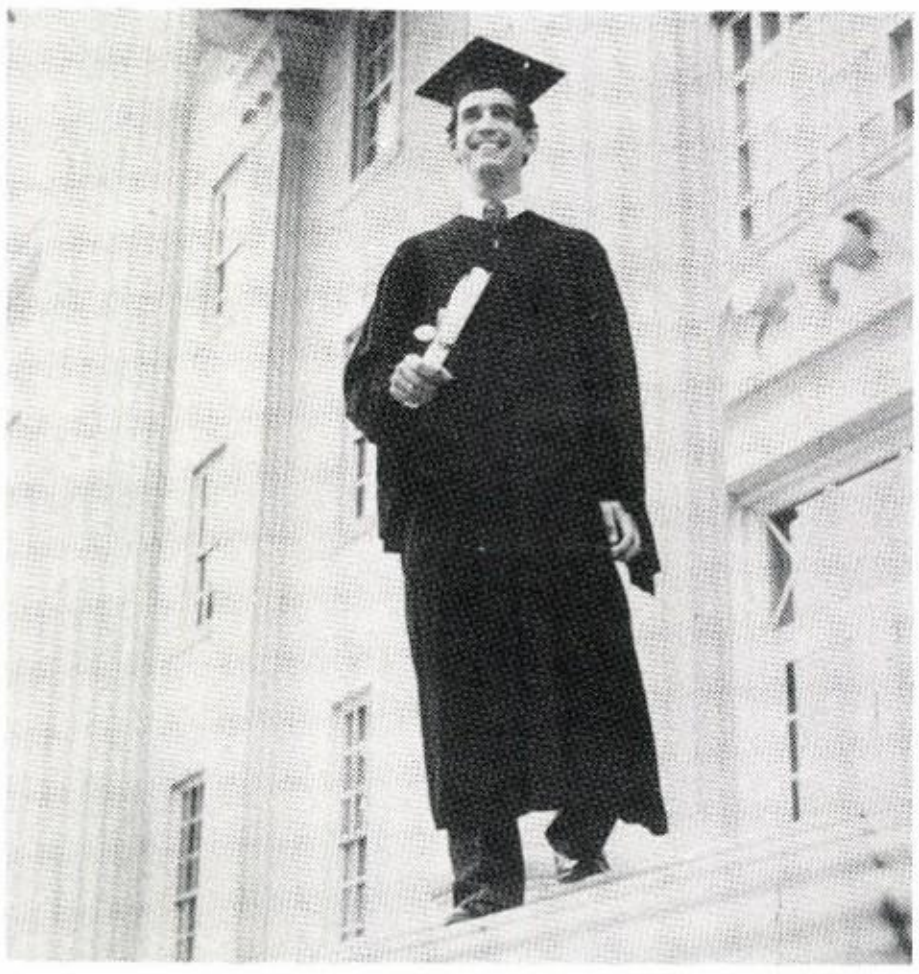
You've got a bright future.
We'll do our part to help keep it that way.



Your generation will need as much electricity as is being used these days. Maybe more. We at Texas Electric are working to provide you with the electricity you'll need for college, your homes and your jobs.

In the past, we've used mostly natural gas and oil to make electricity. Today, we're making almost half of our electricity in plants built to use lignite coal. And, we're building a plant to make electricity using uranium fuel. By using these cheaper and more abundant fuels, we'll help keep your future looking bright.

How Can You Reach Teenagers?

That's a good question, especially if you are an advertiser with products or services to sell to young people. Advertising your particular goods may be difficult, but it is not impossible.

In a recent market survey of the Sam Houston Student Body, researchers discovered that teenagers spend thousands of dollars each month on dating, lunch, entertainment, movies, records, cosmetics, and clothes. Sam students alone spend more than $91,000 on a monthly basis. That means more than $1 million dollars each year!

The media which can best project your message to these teenagers are Texans Talk and the Cherokee, award winning publications on the local, state, and national levels. Students at Sam Houston read both of these publications because they stay up-to-date on happenings of interest to them. Your advertisement can reach all of these teenagers.

Just dial 460-4305 and let a staff member discuss Ad-vantages and rates with you.

YOUR BANK... A REFLECTION OF YOUR GOOD JUDGMENT

Banks may be a lot alike, true. But they're also very different.

They reflect the quality of their staffs on the one hand and on the other, the needs and desires of their customers and potential customers.

It's not by accident that you'll enjoy the most pleasant, comfortable banking surroundings in Arlington at First City National. The largest, fastest motor bank (21 lanes) in Arlington. Two 24-hour Teller 2/Pulse automated teller machines for cash around the clock. And, most important of all, people who really care about your business.

First City National . . . a reflection of your good judgment.

In Memoriam

Kyle was a one-of-a-kind-person. He had the uncanny ability to make a person laugh. He had a love of life and was very high spirited.

Kyle and I became friends last year, our junior year. I had him in Mrs. Kirkpatrick's honors English class. We always used to cram for tests during lunch. Kyle wanted to be a taxidermist and he wrote his junior theme on it. He also loved hunting. It was all he ever talked about.

The only thing I regret is that I only knew him for a short while, but his memory will live on. I'm glad that I knew him.

— Anna Dalton

I wish I could say that Kyle Pounds and I were better friends than we were. Kyle was probably the easiest guy to get along with that I ever knew. I met him back at Hutcheson Junior High, where he always seemed to have broken a different part of his body each month.

Our friendship matured as we went through high school. He had the most obliging sense of humor of any of my friends and he never failed to make me laugh either, no matter how bad of a mood I happened to be in.

Everyone has to die. Kyle went a little earlier than most. It saddened and shocked me when I learned of Kyle's death, and it still upsets me today when I think about it. But I am happy to know that the only memories of Kyle I have are good ones, and that is how I will remember him, jovial, energetic, and always willing to be a friend.

— Kent A. Rice

Kyle Pounds was someone who enjoyed laughing and having a good time. He was a person who could make others see the lighter side of almost anything. He was someone who lived his life to its fullest and by doing so made those around him live also. Most of all, Kyle was a friend to all those who had the fortune to know him.

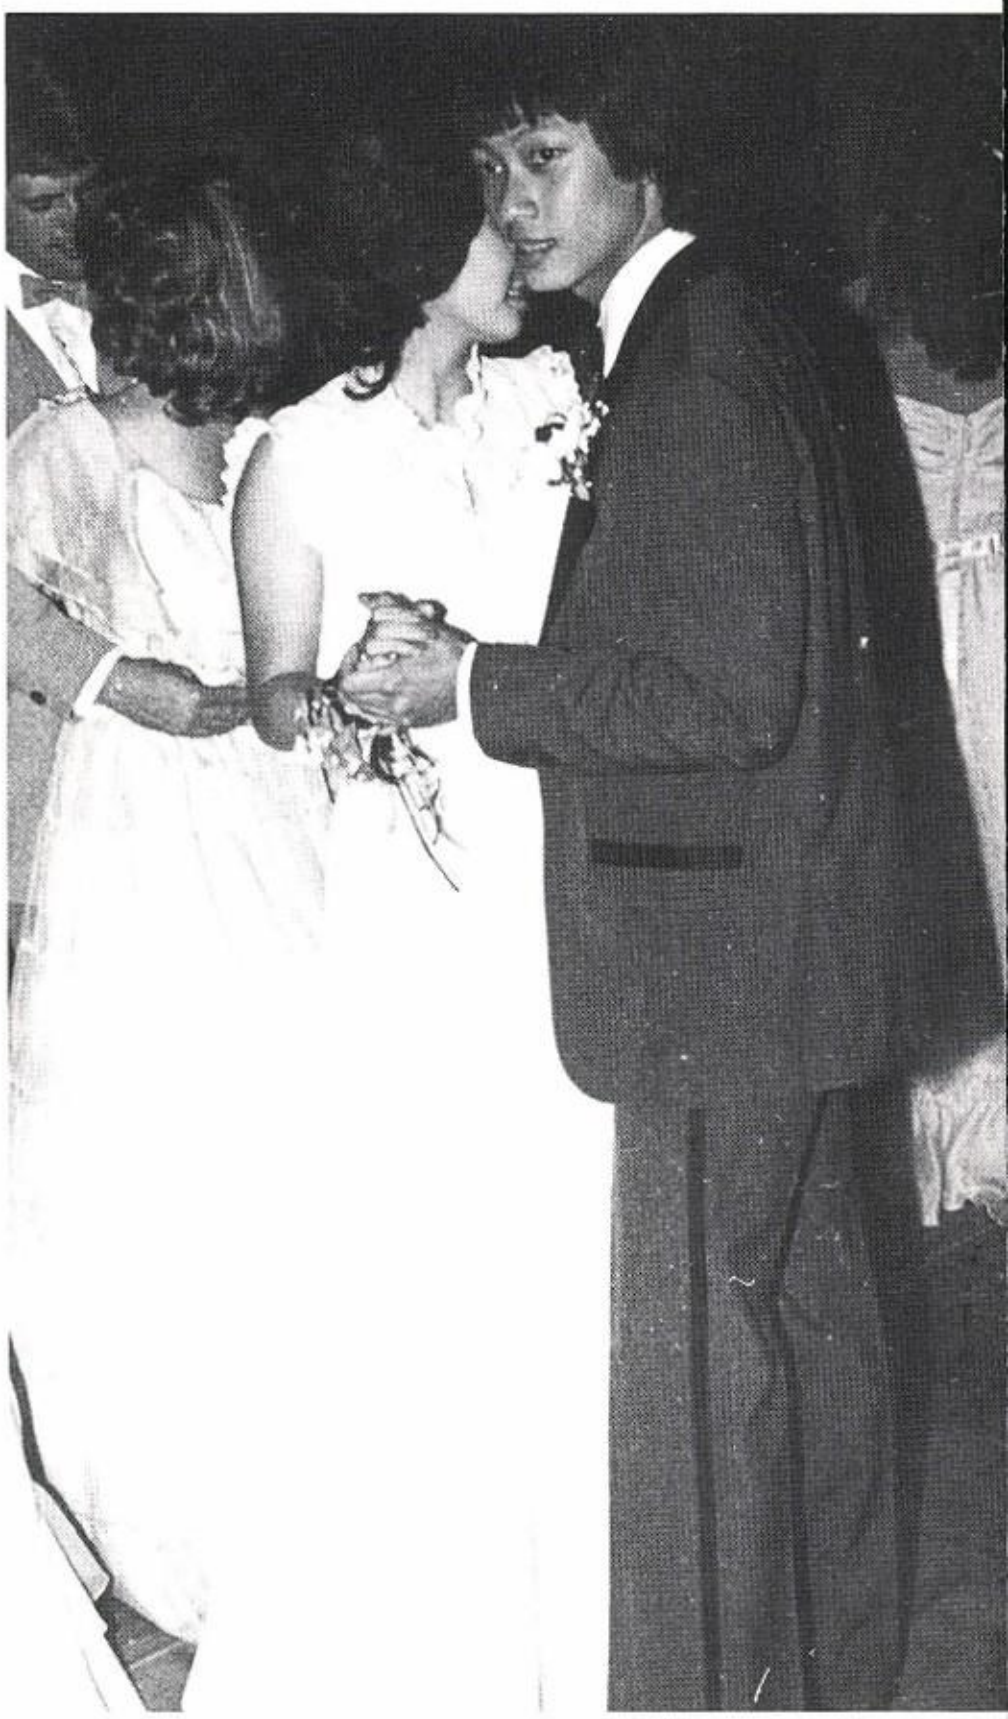
Anatole Hosts Senior Prom

As the Loews Anatole was preparing for over 400 Sam students, these same students were in the various modes of getting ready for their big night, the Senior Prom.

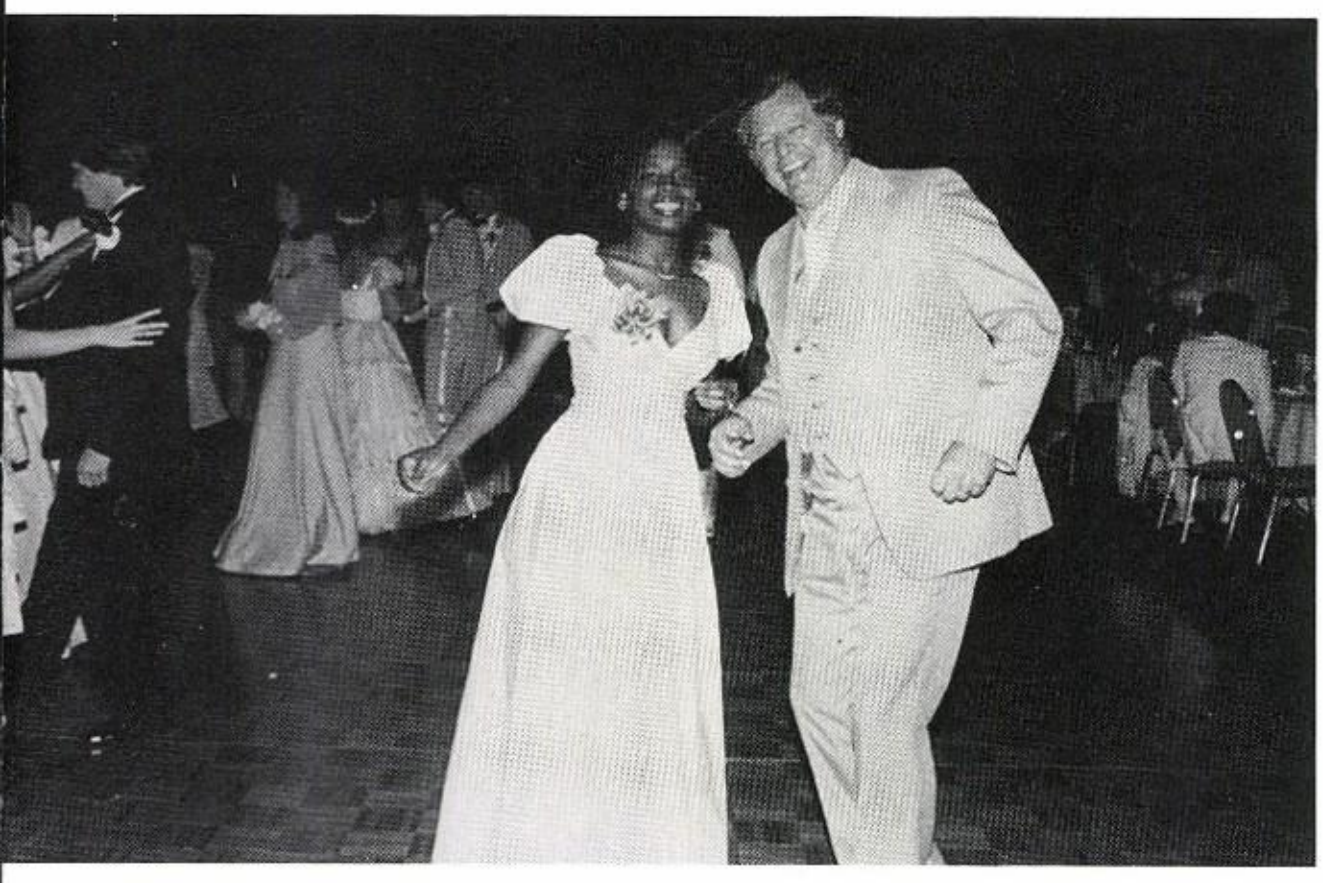
Held in the Khmer Pavillion, students and their dates ate and danced the night away. The Pavillion possessed a spectacular array of fine decor. The entire hotel was seen as breathtaking, when students toured various floors by means of the ever popular elevators.

Even with a $25 a couple rate, fellas and gals still went out and paid up to another $200. This money was spent on such things as limos, dresses, tuxes, and, of course, hotel rooms for parties after the big event.



Slow dancing and swaying to the music are Donnie Frazier with Kim Hobby and Bich Dang with Thai Nguyen.

Seniors David Alsenz and Mike McQuatters take a break from the hustle and bustle of the prom.

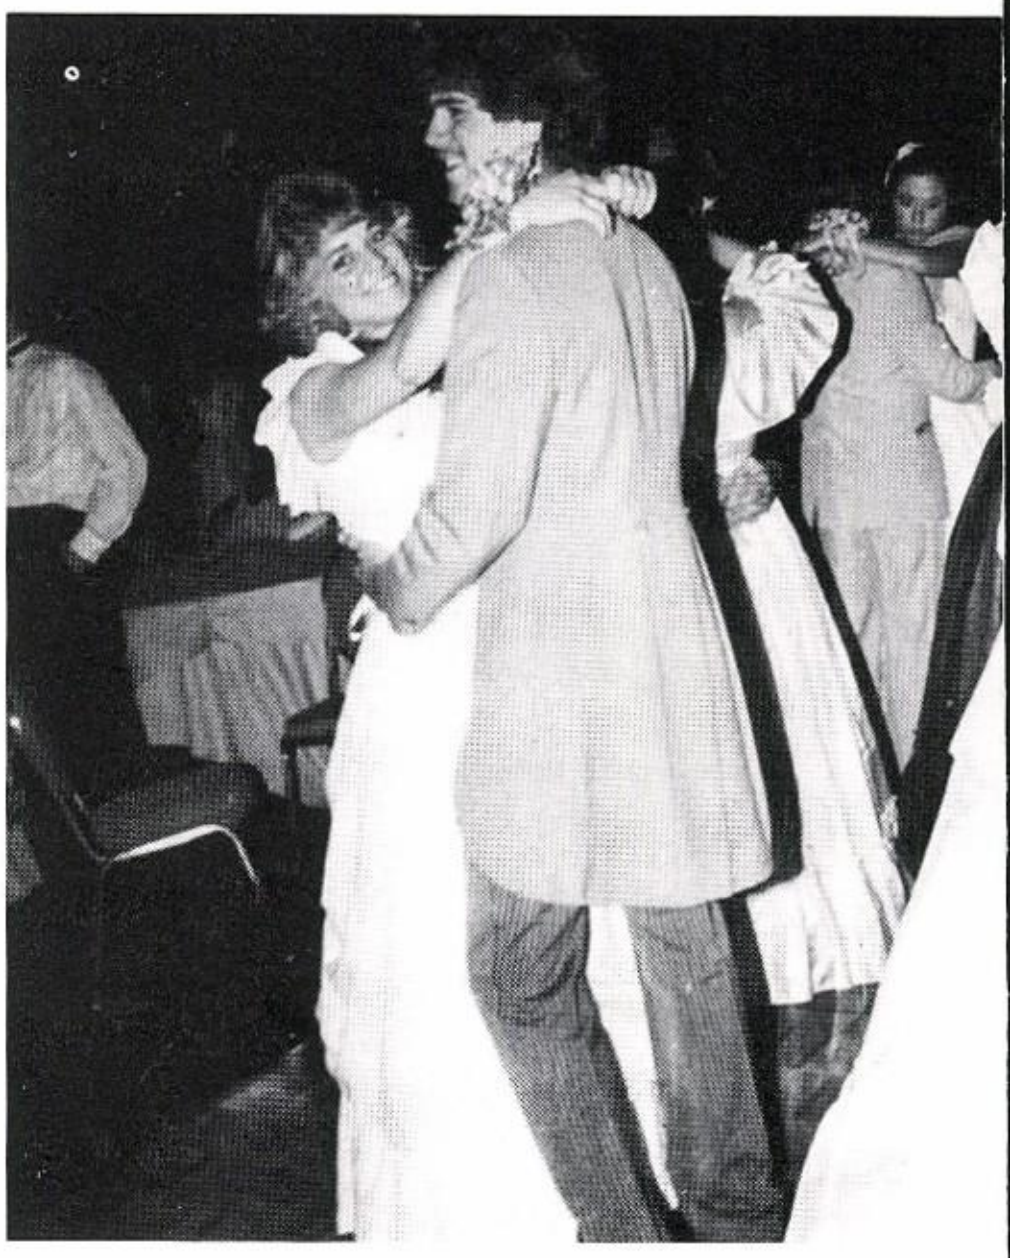


Ellen Wagenheim chats with Irene Suarez, Steven Shepherd, and Elizabeth Grantom while waiting for the dance to begin.

Meme Williams and Principal Bud Remynse boogie down to the music on prom night, May 7.

Lann Bolding and Theresa Campbell enjoy a slow dance at the Prom.

Slow dancing was a favorite of Cara England and James Neinast.



Billy McElroy expresses his true feelings about the whole "prom scene."

Hanh Tran and Thai Nguyen sit down to a relaxing dinner at the Anatole.

enior Greg Johnson displays an impish grin which foretells an even-ng full of fun.

At the Senior Prom, Tod Chapman and Paula Bradley dance the night away.

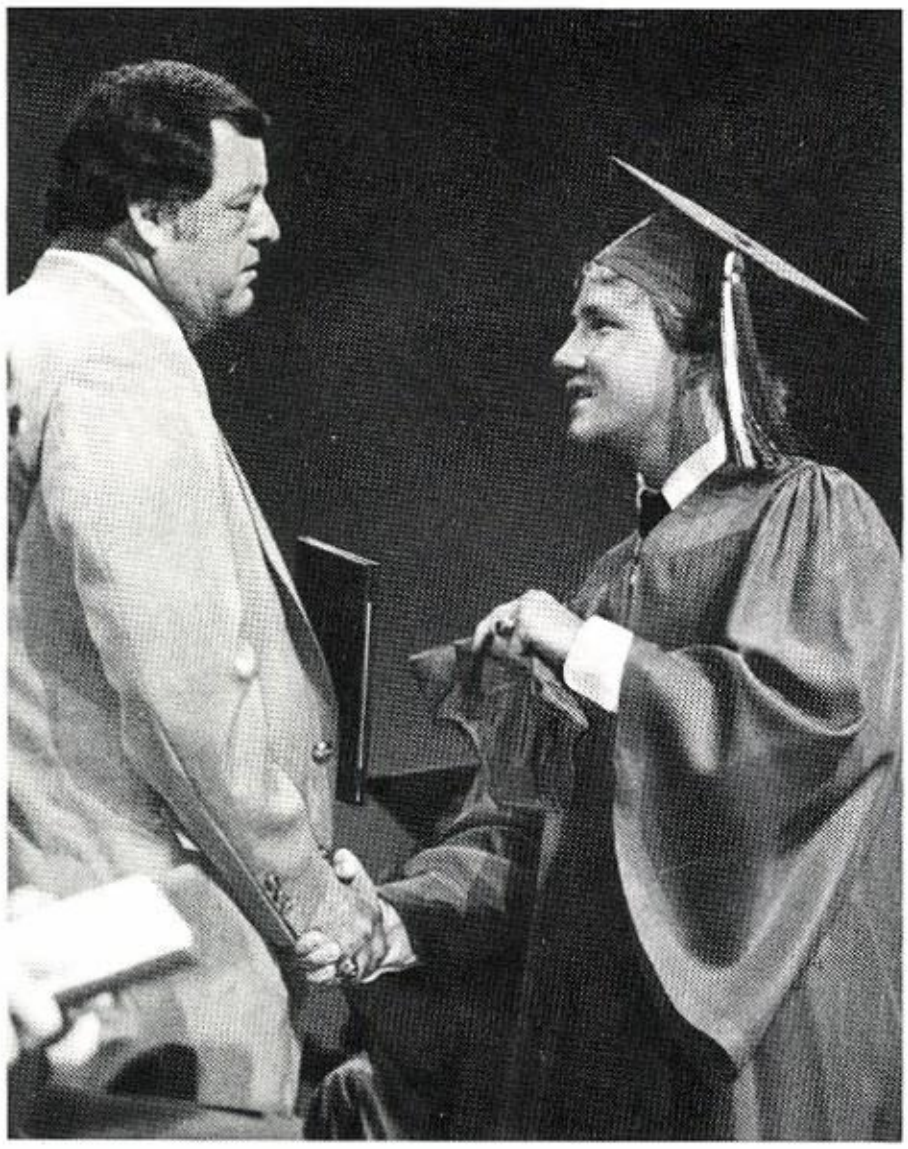
Senior Class Shines at Finale

The finale of the graduation activities was held at 8 p.m., May 24 at Texas Hall of UTA. Each of the 431 upperclassmen was allotted six tickets with which to invite friends and family to attend the commencement ceremony.

There, Salutatorian Kay Thomas presented "Everyone Needs a Helping Hand" and Valedictorian Duane Vanlandingham introduced "Accepting the Challenge" to guests of the service.

Upon receiving their diplomas, the graduates shook Principal B. H. Remynse's hand, giving him a silver dollar as a "thank-you" for his service.

Two days before, Mr. Kenneth Kilinski, senior pastor of Pantego Bible Church, talked to the graduating class on "Thermometer or Thermostat," at Baccalaureate Service held on May 22. Conducted by the Senior Class officers, the activity also took place at Texas Hall.



Swim team member Pat Henz honors Mr. Bud Remynse with a Speedo swim trunk at the graduation ceremony.

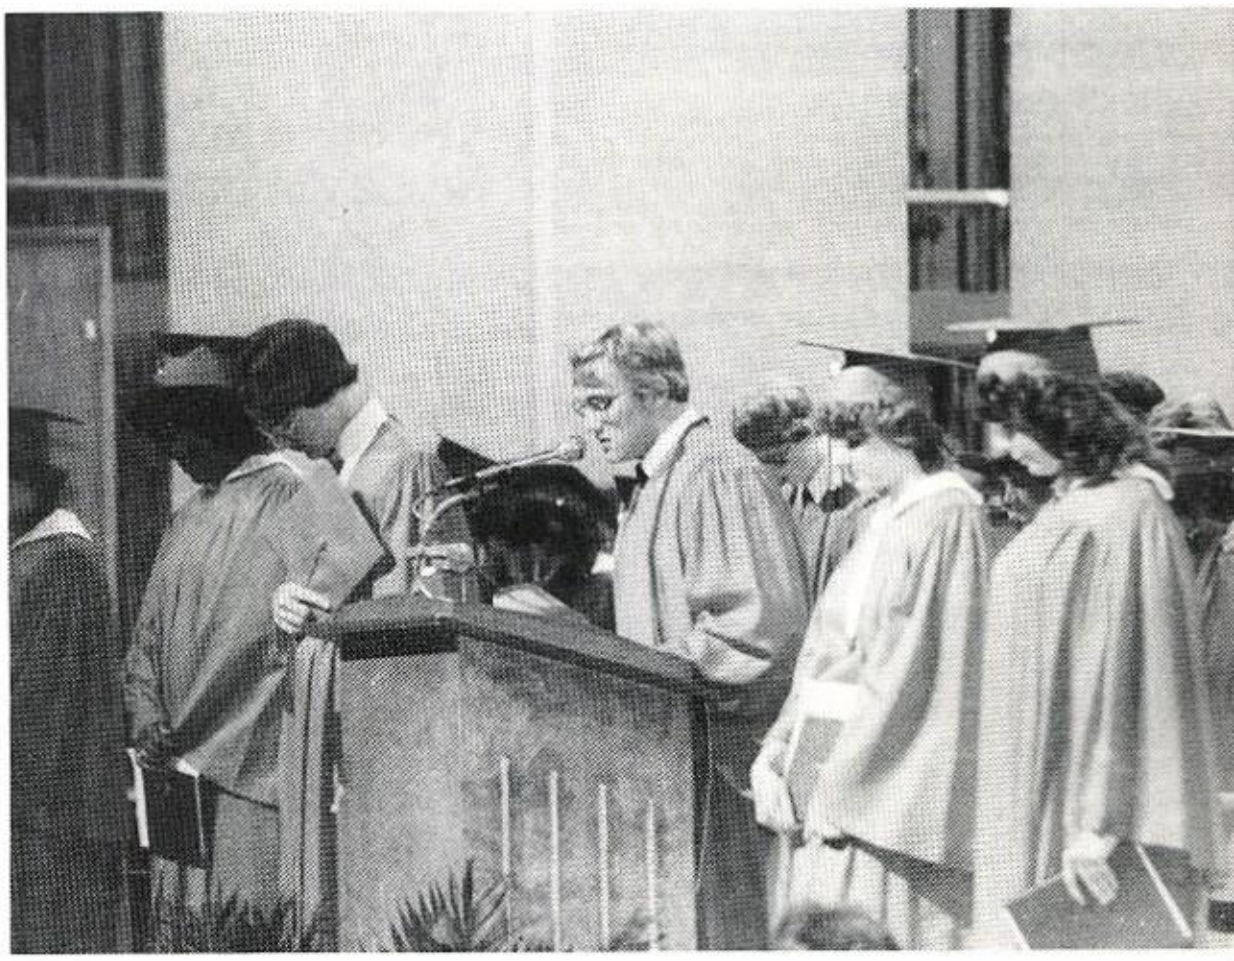
Frankie Kovitch is the star at the Senior Graduation when he receives his diploma.

After all the diplomas are given out, Albert Charanza closes the ceremony with the benediction.



At the Baccalaureate Service at Texas Hall, Pastor Kenneth Kilinski speaks to seniors about their future.

SENIOR CLASS OF '83

Colors Fade for Sister School

Arlington saw two firsts this year, the opening of Arlington's fifth and most ostentatious high school, Martin, and the fading colors of nine year veteran Bowie High School. The stage was set for a situation hundreds of people felt never should have even happened.

It all started in September at the time Martin High School officially opened when it wasn't needed. Enrollment was already down in all the high schools and was increasing in the junior highs. What was needed was another junior high. After Martin was finished, the board decided that another junior high would cost too much.

On Monday, May 16, reality struck Bowie fans when by a school board vote of 4-3, the self-proclaimed "Best Little High School in Texas" became a junior high. Bowie's Senior Class president, Kylon Wilson, summed it up by saying, "I think it's unfair that they (the school board) are changing their minds. They realize they made a mistake by building Martin last year."

Although Bowie students silently protested the board's decision to close their high school, the Volunteers vocally rallied support for their alma mater. After the decision that Monday night, they later congregated at Vandergriff Park to sing songs and yell spirit chants in support of their school.

"We want to tell the school board we have spirit," Kylon said. "We still have pride. We'll never lose it."

It's Party Time . . .

There comes a time in life when a certain amount of maturity is needed to achieve great things. But, on the annual staff, we surpassed that stage and "partied" our way to greatness.

It takes a lot of courage to admit that, but the truth must come out sometime. If it weren't for our secret meetings over birthday cakes, at Cheddar's, or at someone's house, we might never have survived the year.

Although this past year was hard work, it held a lot of fun memories. We hereby present to you the 1983 Cherokee — May it be as cherishable for you as it is for us.

Possessiveness of an object comes from spending time with it. Like parents, we feel overprotective of our offspring, the 1983 Cherokee. Much time and hard work has been given to our child, and an additional extra eye was contributed by our sponsor. It has become part of ourselves, but we realize that like time one cannot be possessive of memories. So it is with pride that we present the 1983 Cherokee . . . now
